FRENCH NOTE INVITES NEW PEACE PARLEY

Expresses Willingness to Open Peace Letters to Other Powers

OUTLINE PRINCIPLES French Recede from Former Stand on "War of Aggression"

Washington—(AP)—France Saturday asserted her readiness to submit to the German, British, Italian and Japanese governments all the Franco-American anti-war correspondence, along with the draft of a general treaty pledging them not to resort to war. The purpose of these submissions, as outlined in a note handed to Secretary Kellogg by Ambassador Claudel would be that the four governments might "join in seeking, in the spirit and in the letter of the last American note, any adjustment which in the last analysis may be forthcoming with respect to the possibility of reconciling previous obligations with the terms of the contemplated treaty."

CHANGE ATTITUDE

While the new French note abandons previous insistence that the anti-war pledge be restricted to wars of aggression, three points are outlined as necessary, in the French view, if an agreement is to be reached. They are:

1.—That the treaty be open to the accession of all governments of the world and to come into force only after "universal acceptance," unless the powers which had signed or acceded "should agree upon its coming into force, despite certain absences."

2.—That if one signatory state "should fail to keep its word," other signatories be released automatically from their engagement "with respect to the offending state."

3.—That the war renunciation be proclaimed in no way deprive signatories "of the right of legitimate defense."

The new proposal of Foreign Minister Briand is that the signatory powers of such a multi-lateral treaty "should make a solemn declaration condemning recourse to war as an instrument of national policy."

Other words, as a means of carrying out their own spontaneous, independent policy."

SLEET STORMS CUT OHIO OFF FROM OUTSIDE

More Than 10,000 Telephone, Telegraph Poles Snapped by Damaging Ice

Cleveland—(AP)—An army of men in sleet-burdened Northwestern Ohio carried on Saturday in an effort to connect nearly a score of cities with the outside world.

A maze of broken poles, tangled wires and shattered trees lay over an area between Sandusky, Toledo and Lima. More than 10,000 telephone and telegraph poles were believed to have snapped under the weight of wires coated with ice.

Throughout the district transportation Saturday was either tied up or seriously impeded.

Property damaged seemed certain to mount into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Findlay, Van Wert, Bowling Green, Fostoria and numerous smaller towns continued isolated.

ONLY ONE DEATH

As news of the isolated places became available, only one death was reported, that of Kenneth Phillips, 24, of Perrysburg, who died from exposure after he had been pinned beneath his automobile, wrecked on an icy pavement.

Findlay seemingly was among the worst sufferers from the storm. Factories, schools and business houses there were forced to suspend when power lines and other wires went down. The streets were a mass of broken poles and trees.

Norwalk schools also were closed. Property damaged at Tiffin and adjoining territory was estimated at $300,000.

Lima, although at the southern edge of the storm area, reported damage amounting to approximately $50,000, mostly to telephone and telegraph companies.

REMUS STILL MUST FIGHT FOR LIBERTY

Though Sane and Granted Freedom, He Faces Stay of Execution

Lima, Ohio—(AP)—Declared sane Friday by the court of appeals, George Remus, former bootleg leader and player of his wife, still seemingly had a fight facing him before he is released from the state hospital for the insane here.

The appellate court by two to one decision held him mentally competent and granted him a writ of habeas corpus to liberate him from the hospital where he has been since Jan. 6 after he was acquitted of the murder of his wife on grounds of insanity.

Barriers to his immediate release, however, were immediately erected when E. M. Botkin, Allen-co prosecutor, set to work on a motion to the state supreme court asking a stay of execution. He planned Saturday to seek a new trial and if that fails announced he would take the motion at once into the supreme court.

Delaware, O.—(AP)—United States Senator Frank B. Willis, Ohio's favorite son candidate for the Republican presidential nomination was eliminated from the contest by death Friday night, while attending an old-fashioned homecoming demonstration.

He was stricken a few minutes before he was to deliver a campaign address to his district. He was apparently singing "A Soldier's Farewell." The hour just preceding his death was one of triumph for the senator, with his home town honoring him magnificently.

SENATOR HEFLIN HINTS AT MURDER IN WILLIS' DEATH

Washington—(AP)—A suggestion that Mrs. Frank B. Willis have the contents of the stomach of Senator Willis examined by a competent chemist was made in a telegram sent here Saturday by Senator Hefflin, Democrat Alabama.

Senator Hefflin described the senator's death as "strange," since he was "so well and strong" and added:

"I pardon me for suggesting that you have a competent chemist examine the contents of his stomach."

Columbus Republican club was singing "A Soldier's Farewell."

While the place club was singing the truth, many of his old friends, very bad. Soon after the senator collapsed. Mrs. Willis, called from the stage where she had been sitting with her husband, reached his side a few minutes before he died.

The audience first was informed the senator had been taken ill and would be unable to speak. They sensed something more distressing had happened and as they lingered to learn the truth, many of his old friends, both men and women cried. Some women became almost hysterical.

National guard troops that had participated in the parade and demonstration, took charge and dispersed the crowd, which became excited but orderly.

With the senator when the end came besides Mrs. Willis, were his brother, Buell W. Willis, his father-in-law, John Dustin of Galena, three brothers-in-law, his private secretary, and a few personal friends.

Mrs. Willis was unconscious for sometime her husband was dead. Escorted from the chamber on the verge of hysteria, she was taken to the home of her father in Galena.

Miss Helen Willis, the only child, was notified at Ada, Ohio, where she is a professor at Ohio Northern university.

National guard troops formed an escort of honor as the senator's body was removed to an undertaking establishment. Major L. C. Riddle announced he would maintain a guard over the body until the funeral.

CITY IN MOURNING

News of the senator's death spread rapidly over the city. His pictures displayed in the homes and business places were draped in mourning.

While funeral arrangements have not yet been made, burial probably will be at Galena, his birthplace, 11 miles southeast of this city.

The hour just preceding the senator's death had been one of pleasing triumph for him. In the town he called home he had been signally honored. The streets were decorated in red, white and blue. His name streamed across the thoroughfares teeming with his admirers.

Senator Willis had arrived in Delaware Friday afternoon from Columbus, where he was met by a boyhood friend, Roy Brower.

Mr. Willis told Brower he wished to rest and went to a hotel for about two hours' sleep. Upon arising, apparently refreshed, Senator Willis went to a Glensville club dinner in the hotel.

Fall Says Sinclair Had No Part In Lease Dicker

El Paso, Tex.—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who is giving a deposition detailing his story of the Teapot Dome lease to be used in defense of Harry F. Sinclair, charged with Fall of conspiring to defraud the government, was under direct examination for ten hours, the equivalent of two or three days.

During the ten hours Fall has been telling his story of the lease which the government charges he gave Sinclair in exchange for the $233,000 in Liberty bonds, part of which came from the Continental Trading company, a profit bond fund the former cabinet official has sought to contradict the government's contention and show that the lease was negotiated in the usual way, chiefly by his subordinates who carried on the deal with J. W. Zevely, representative of Sinclair.

Sinclair himself, friends said Fall would testify, did not personally participate in the oil lease until the day it was signed. On that day, April, 1922, Sinclair and Zevely called at Fall's Washington office and when the catkins of others insisted that the government should receive greater testimony, Sinclair tossed the lease across the table, declaring: Here is your lease, Mr. Secretary, I am done with it."

However, Sinclair accepted the lease after some discussion. During the examination Fall has put into record all of his orders and correspondence dealing with the oil leases, gone into the inauguration of the government policy of leasing oil lands to individuals and insisted that payment of Liberty bonds be received from Sinclair was for one-third interest in his Teas Rites Cattle and Land company. The deal on which the sale of the ranch interest was made, was not negotiated until after the oil lease had been signed, Fall has contended.

OUSTED

WALTER F. PLUMMER

Walter F. Plummer is out of his job as sheriff of Winnebago county because Governor F. B. The governor's order ousting Plummer from his job was issued Friday night.

THEY CAN'T SAY PRINCE EDDIE IS NOT PERSISTENT

Bromsgrove, Worcestershire, Eng.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales, who was thrown, renounced and won a steep chase the other day, fell twice in a point-to-point race Saturday and then gave up unhurt.

Unhindered by the sudden condition of the course, the Prince started in the second race but at the same old fourth fence he fell again. The prince caught his horse, remounted and finished the course amid wild cheers.

THE FINDINGS

That Gerry O'Connor, queen of the bootleggers of the Fox river valley and slinging dancer at the sheriff's beer parlor, was a woman, the jury found the truth when she was in her day that the sheriff kissed her and made love to her on several occasions while she was a prisoner in the jail.

That Marie Turinski, 19-year-old prisoner, was visited by the sheriff several times while she was in the jail and he put his arms around her, took her by the hand, and made improper proposals to her.

That the sheriff left his jail unguarded March 27, 1927, enabling "Gerry" and Russell Dowling, then serving time at hard labor for non-support of his family, to escape the keys to the jail, help themselves to confidential liquor, and become so intoxicated that they could not open the jail door to let him in when he returned.

That a keg of beer was opened at the jail May 12, 1927, by the sheriff and a group of his friends, and that they drank out of the three hours that "Gerry" was present and participated in the drinking, and that she put on a dance for the entertainment of the men that a violin was playing during the evening, and that a 14-year-old boy was in the room and drinking with the men.

That the sheriff knew about the delivery at the jail of a keg of beer for a Mr. William Crook.

That the sheriff participated in a game at the jail on May 15, 1927, with "Gerry" and a friend, "Gang" Turinski, and they played for money.

That J. L. Watkins, private detective now serving a sentence for perjury, told the truth when he first appeared before Attorney Piper, and the second time, when he gave the testimony for which he is now serving time in state prison.

That it was possible for Watkins and other witnesses to have heard the conversation in which they said the sheriff admitted receiving $200 from Mrs. Bessie Eichins, proprietor of the Landmark hotel, and that these Neenah—The Neenah team of hockey players has no valid right to claim a forfeit from Oshkosh in the last hockey game of the season and therefore Neenah cannot claim the 1928 championship by counting that game in the final percentage, according to an official interpretation, asked for by the Oshkosh team and ruled on by the Chicago Athletic association.

The association's decision follows: "The referee is the sole and only judge as to the fitness of the ice for play, and if at any time during the game he decides that the ice was unsafe, dangerous and otherwise unfit to play and ordered the game suspended, a team abiding, whether correct or not, should not be made to suffer on account of such action."

EASY TO TELL WHO WON TOURNEY GAME

Neenah People Disappointed in Showing of Basketball Game

Neenah—It was a disappointed group of people that had waited Friday night in front of the telegraph office to receive the final results of the Neenah-Madison basketball game being played at Madison in the annual state tournament. One could tell that Neenah had lost as the crowd walked away without cheering or yelling and would have made the air ring had won in the semi-finals.

The best team won. Neenah people witnessing the games claimed that the team was way off and no game during the entire schedule did it show the good form it did here during the district tournament. Gaertner, the midget forward, Schneller and Haase, seemed to get the majority of the bouquets while Johnson and Radtke and Ehlers came in for their share. The subs, Therman and Pratt, played in some of the games but failed to register any points, they sometimes do in a regular game.

Hundreds of Neenah people who drove to Madison Friday afternoon, could not get into the gymnasium, because of the crowd.

SPICE ARRAIGNED IN COURT AT OSHKOSH

Bessie Elchins to Fight Charge of Selling Liquor on New Years Eve

Menasha—Al H. Spice, whose soft drink parlors at 406 Racine-st. were raided by state prohibition agents and Menasha police Tuesday, was before Judge Goss in municipal court at Oshkosh Friday charged with possession of intoxicating liquor in an unlicensed place. It was stated that two pairs of alleged intoxicating liquor were found concealed in a trap on the stairs leading to the basement. Spice who had no attorney, waived preliminary examination and his preliminary was set for April 10. His bond was fixed at $500 which he furnished.

G. Conley of Menasha pleaded not guilty in municipal court at Oshkosh Friday to the charge of sale of intoxicating liquor on March 1. A prior conviction Sept. 24, 1925 was charged. He will have his trial on April 10.

Mrs. Bessie Elchins was arraigned in municipal court at Oshkosh Friday on a charge of selling liquor on New Years Eve. She pleaded not guilty and the case was set for trial April 17. She was represented by C. G. Cannon of Appleton.

PLUMMER OUSTED FROM SHERIFF JOB

It actually heard the conversation as the testified and that the sheriff did admit receiving $200 for the protection of Mrs. Elchins establishment.

From among the former men and women inmates of the county jail, evidence was presented to show the benevolent care of prisoners provided by the 27-year-old sheriff. Some told of being taken for airplane rides by the sheriff; others of how the youthful sheriff left them for an airplane ride in the county jail with the keys through which they gained access to beer and moonshine, all of which the sheriff denied.

Gerardine O'Connor, the youthful violator of the prohibition law, did most of the painting. Professing her love for the sheriff, but admitting it was spurned, Miss O'Connor said she had been taken for an airplane ride by the sheriff, but also of shooting dice with the official, and said she had been allowed to go out on "dates" to nearby roadhouses while she was a prisoner at the jail.

Another side of the canvas was painted by Mrs. Bessie Elchins, keeper of a Menasha disorderly house, which she said paid Plummer $200 for protection money that didn't protect, since her place was raided shortly after she paid the money. She called detectives to corroborate her testimony that she had paid for protection.

CHARGE MALICE

The sheriff and his attorneys had a dispute over the charges. They brought forth testimony to show that Geraldine had said she "didn't give a damn" what she said about the sheriff, and attributed her charges to malice. The same thing, they claimed, the statement made by one of the prisoners that on an occasion when he had been taken for an airplane ride he went back to jail to get some liquor for Mr. Plummer was denied, and in rebuttal other witnesses said no liquor was obtained for the sheriff.

Regarding the charge that Miss O'Connor went on "dates" while she was an inmate prisoner, the defense said that the court on that day, on the charge of Anna Meyer, cook at the jail, and asserted concerning the drinking parties in which the prisoners were supposed to have participated when the sheriff was away that if they occurred, it was without the knowledge of the sheriff.

Mrs. Elchins claimed that she and the sheriff had discussed the $200 "protection money" while two private detectives listened from a neighboring room. The defense asserted that on account of the location of the room, the detectives could not have heard the conversation, and introduced the testimony of a friend of Plummer who was along when the conversation took place to show that it did not concern protection money.

WATKINS SENTENCED

The "protection" claim indirectly resulted in one man being sentenced to Waupun to serve a year to 14 months sentence for perjury. John Watkins, Milwaukee, private detective, was charged with the perjury. He was sentenced to the county jail for 14 months.

Watkins admitted his official testimony that he had heard talk of "protection money" was correct, and denied that Mrs. Elchins had aided him at all in his notes on the conversation. He pleaded guilty to the perjury charge.

As to the credibility of many of the prosecution witnesses was aided by the defense as one of its main contentions for exoneration and that produced witnesses to show that it was not unusual to permit some prisoners the freedom of the grounds. The hearing aroused unusual interest in Oshkosh, and at each session the circuit court room was packed to the doors, and later the city hall.

LATEST NEWS OF THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

BIG DIFFERENCE IN AUTOMOBILE BODIES

Packard Company Uses Only Highest Grade Materials in Construction Work

The method of manufacturing bodies in all large body plants is practically standard insofar as machining and methods of assembling are concerned. However, there is a vast difference in the use of materials, methods of joining lumber and the character of the tools employed to produce accurate and high quality work.

It is the practice of the ordinary body manufacturer to cut costs considerably by the use of any species of hardwood, such as ash, oak, (usually wormy oak) maple, birch, elm, gumwood, chestnut and others. It is quite obvious where the timber is cut from their own forest, that they make use of all kinds of lumber which grows in that particular forest as it would not be economical to assort the lumber.

In the manufacture of Packard bodies, we use approximately 50 per cent of high grade ash and the balance of either maple or birch. In purchasing lumber we state specifically that it must be of hard tough texture and if it does not meet with our requirements when received in the factory, we have an agreement that the mills will replace any such rejection.

In framing up the various wood members of the Packard body, we use largely the half lap method. It is very seldom that we use the mortice and tenon method. In making lap joints we have the assurance that all joints being visible, it is more easily detected against defects than the mortice and tenon joints.

The mortice and tenon joint is usually employed where a quick assembly is desired regardless of the accuracy of the joint and is largely used in the make-up of the cheaper grade bodies. Where mortice and tenon joints are used on Packard bodies we are, particularly to see that the joint is tight on all four sides.

The tools used in the Packard factory are almost entirely built of metal, much the same as the tools which assemble our motors and it is quite obvious that tools of this character are much more accurate and cost a great deal more than wood constructed jigs and fixtures.

We have had the experience of using wood fixtures and found they were very troublesome due to the fact that they were subject to all changes of the weather and could not be relied upon to produce accurate assemblies. It is our understanding that the Packard factory is the only one which is equipped almost entirely with metal framing fixtures.

Others have tried to enlarge upon the good quality of the slatted roof over the wire covered method. In discussing the quality of one construction versus the other, we believe that the purpose of the slats or wire is to support the fabric cover and one or the other would suffice for the purpose. However, it has been our experience that the slatted roof is more troublesome due to the fact that the slats are nailed to the cross members and are very likely to become loose and cause annoying rattles. We believe that the slats used by our competitors are very light, usually consisting of the cheapest kind of soft wood, such as red gum and Douglas fir, and it certainly does not add to the strength of the structure. The wire construction is very strong and certainly uniform. If the wood slats were assembled diagonally, they would have a bracing effect, but as they are run parallel to the center line of the car, it adds but very little to the strength of the structure.

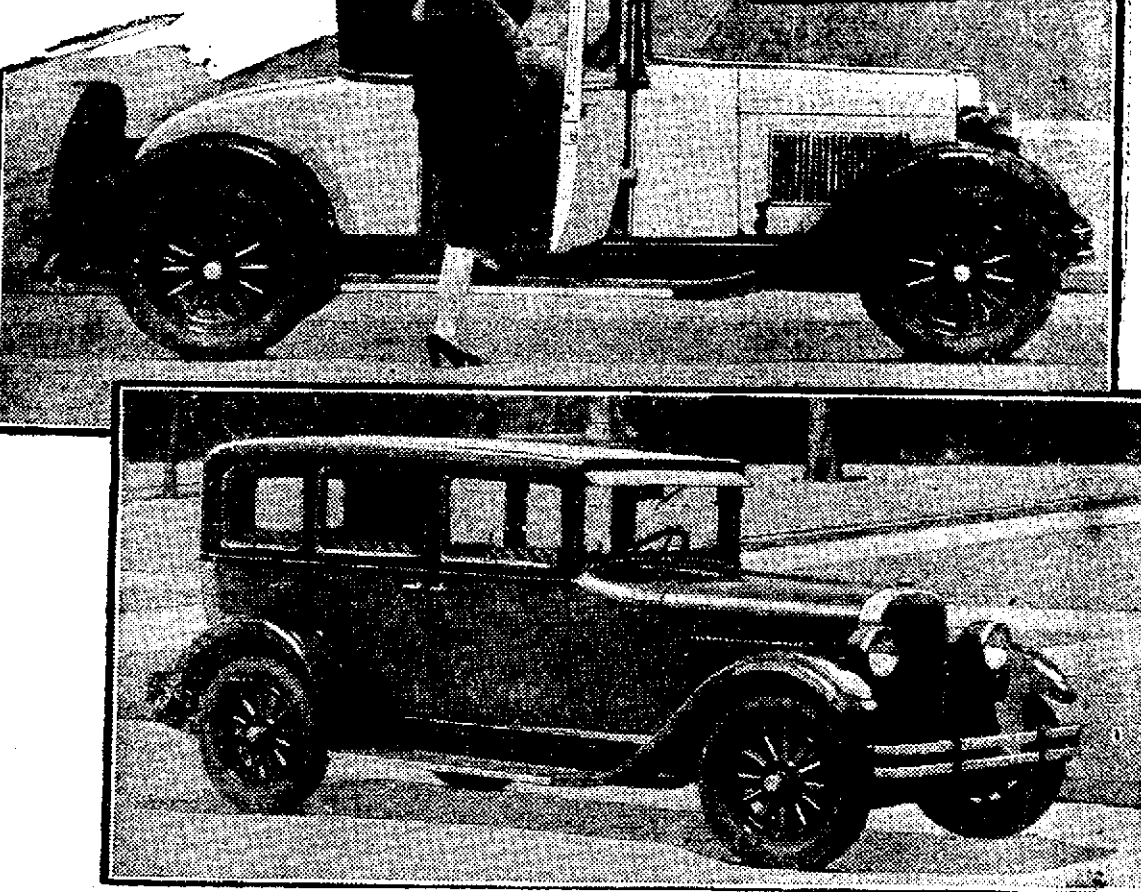

Our woodwork is very accurately machined and all pieces are inspected with a fixture which is constructed entirely of metal. It is our understanding that nowhere else is the same system employed to maintain absolute accuracy.

Our door panels and cowl are stamped in one piece and we use 19-gauge steel while others use approximately 20-gauge which is 905 lighter.

Our factory is run strictly on the day-work and bonus basis while other places operate on the piece-work system which generally results in work being done much quicker and no doubt, inferior.

Dodge Brothers Introduce The Standard Six

Long graceful lines feature the new line of Sixes offered by Dodge Brothers, Inc., at prices from $375 to $970. Body styles are being produced in attractive color combinations, and a balanced construction affords low center of gravity with maximum headroom. The coupe is shown at right, and the deluxe sedan below.

DODGE INTRODUCES THE STANDARD SIX

Four Body Designs Comprise New Line of Cars Being Placed on Display Today

DISCONTINUANCE OF THE FOUR CYLINDER PASSENGER CARS ANNOUNCED

Detroit—After over two years of intensive development work, Dodge Brothers, Inc., today officially announces the Standard Six line of passenger cars, priced from $375 to $970 and superior in speed and acceleration to any cars selling at $1000 or less. In these new cars, it is claimed, exceptional riding comfort, economical performance and ability to travel at sustained high speeds have been combined with the ruggedness and dependability for which Dodge Brothers motor cars have always been so well known.

The new cars are displayed in the showroom of the Wolter Motor Company local Dodge Brothers dealer at Appleton. The factory is now building the Standard Six in four body types, the coupe, sedan, deluxe sedan and cabriolet, finished in a number of different attractive color combinations. Production of the new sixes is now 1000 per day and Dodge Brothers schedules call for total output of all types exceeding 1650 per day, the largest production schedule in Dodge Brothers history.

The sweeping graceful lines of the Standard Six give the impression of cars selling at much higher prices. Although the overall height is low adequate headroom is provided. High seat backs and wide cushions, both tilted at the correct angle, insure the comfort of the passengers. This feature and the unusual size of the seven bearing crankshaft insure smoothness of performance at all speeds. The total projected area of the seven main bearings is 4.15 square inches.

The N. A. C. C. rating, on which taxation is based, is 27.34 horsepower but the engine actually develops 55 horsepower. Extensive tests have demonstrated the brilliant performance of the Standard Six engine in acceleration, hill climbing ability and in smooth, quiet operation for long periods at high speeds.

The four wheel brakes are completely enclosed and are the steel hydraulic (mechanical) internal expanding in 12 inch drums. They respond to the lightest foot pressure with uniform braking on all four wheels.

The parking brake contracts on the propeller shaft. Balloon tires 29 x 5 with wood wheels are standard equipment on all types except the cabriolet which is equipped with wire wheels.

The equipment includes speedometer, ammeter, and oil pressure gauge grouped under a single glass, adjustable hooded instrument lamp carburetor mixture control and ignition switch with theft lock. The throttle and spark control levers are on top of the steering wheel while the light control is on the steering column within easy reach. The cowl ventilator control lever is within easy reach and the ventilator closes against a felt pad. The full vision one-piece swinging windshield is easily adjustable to any position for ventilation and may be opened wide. An automatic wiper is provided.

With the introduction of the Standard Six, Dodge Brothers, Inc., announces the discontinuance of the four cylinder passenger cars which were priced at approximately the same level at which the Standard Six is now offered.

The three distinct lines of Sixes now being made by Dodge Brothers include the Standard Six, the Victory Six and the Senior, at a price range from $375 to $1,770 and embracing all the popular body types and an unusually extensive selection of color combinations.

INSULATION MAKES GOOD BATTERIES

Threaded Rubber Method Result of Much Experimenting, Willard Man Says

"Threaded Rubber Insulation came as a climax to many years of research for a battery insulation material more durable than wood," says Al Schaefer, local Willard dealer.

"Wood was the most natural insulating material due to its porosity, but it is resinous and after being treated loses much of its life. It also has to be used in such thin sheets that it will not withstand the action of acid for long periods.

"Rubber had always been known to be one of the best insulating materials and many experiments had been carried out to find a treatment for it which would allow circulation of acid between battery plates.

"Perforated rubber sheets had been tried, but it was found that sediment collected in the perforations and caused a short circuit between the plates.

"It was not until 1917 that T. A. Willard conquered this obstacle and brought out Threaded Rubber Insulation—a combination of thin sheets of rubber pierced by thousands of tiny threads. It was found that these threads not only allowed free circulation of the acid, but that they accelerated its flow by capillary action.

"Now Threaded Rubber Insulation is the mark of a quality battery. By the use of Threaded Rubber Insulation an owner is insured of getting the full life from his battery plates and the life of the plates he is protected from re-insulation expense."

HUPP TELLS SECRET OF ENGINE DESIGN

Compact Grouping of Cylinders and Heavy Crankshaft Provide Smoothness

Compactness and shortness are two of the most important problems with which designers of a straight eight engine must contend. Solution of these twin problems has been most successfully achieved by Hupmobile engineers, according to Frank E. Watts, chief engineer of the Hupmobile Motor Car Corporation.

"Compact arrangement of cylinders is of great importance," says Mr. Watts. "It permits using a much shorter crankshaft and makes possible a smoother eight-in-line engine than any other method.

"The L-head engines used in the two Hupmobiles straight eight are the shortest and most compact power plants of this type ever devised. This means superior performance and longer life, since it eliminates the tendency to crankshaft distortion and vibration present in all other types of straight eight construction."

Crankshafts in both cars are short and carefully balanced, heavy and extremely rigid. They weigh about 50 per cent more than the average crankshaft designed to do the same work. Hupmobile engineers say the crankshafts in their two engines are the heaviest in any production engines of comparable size. Their weight and rigidity are also accounted for much of each engine's super-smoothness.

INSTALL RADIOS IN BUICK POLICE CARS

California Police Chief Using Latest Method to Catch Fleeing Criminals

Flint, Mich.—Police Chief August Vollmer of Berkeley, Calif., has just completed installation of radio sets in all the Buicks comprising the city's police department fleet, according to word from the Howard Automobile Company, Pacific Coast distributors of Buick cars. The combination of radio communication and fast pursuit machines, in Mr. Vollmer's opinion, is one which will vastly increase the odds against crime.

Chief Vollmer is widely known for his work in criminology. He is frequently called into consultation on police subjects in other cities, and asked to prescribe for conditions confronting authorities there. His policy of providing his own men with the most up-to-date equipment at the disposal of science has attracted much attention to him, over a period of several years.

Among the residents of Berkeley, the policy is credited to a very large extent with making it possible for that city to maintain law and order with the smallest police force, per capita of population, in the country.

Past indications of Mr. Vollmer's convictions on the subject of crime prevention included equipping his men with Buicks so that they might be prepared for any emergency requiring fast and reliable pursuit cars. His most recent step, installation of radios in all these cars, was aimed at providing instantaneous communication with the men manning the cars, no matter in what part of the city they might be.

Within a few seconds after an alarm is received at headquarters, lights flash in the driver's compartment of each car, notifying its crew that a message for them is on the air. By means of the fixed-tuned short wave sets located in the rear deck it is then possible to receive the message and mobilize for action with a minimum of lost time.

HUDSON ENGINE IS MODEL OF EFFICIENCY

Snap, Speed, Performance and Economy Are Accomplished by New Design

In the trend toward motor car engines of high compression as in many other progressive engineering developments, Hudson is again a leader and a pioneer.

High compression motors are necessary for speed, snap, performance and economy, but these advantages were previously obtained at the cost of smoothness and flexibility.

Through a companion invention to the Super-Six principle of motor balancing Hudson research brings to standards of automobile performance.

Through the skillful combination of these major developments, the heat and fuel formerly wasted in gasoline motors has been turned into useful power and a new economy and elasticity of motor performance has been attained.

In this new type of Hudson power plant high compression is obtained by a new arrangement in which the intake valve is located in the head of the motor so that it overlaps, in part, the exhaust valve just below it.

This valve arrangement allows the use of a small combustion chamber for high compression. The spark plug is located at the remotest part of the chamber. When the plug fires the initial combustion takes place far enough away from the cylinder so that its first severity passes permitting the piston to be pushed downward instead of struck a blow.

Combining these features with the Super-Six principle of motor balance Hudson engineers have obtained an engine with Super-Six smoothness and a power output resembling that of a steam engine. And these results are obtained with the use of any ordinary motor fuel.

Through these two companion inventions every phase of motor performance is brilliantly better. Hudson is given an additional supremacy that is immediately and continuously apparent whether you drive a city block or a hundred thousand miles.

OAKLAND ASSEMBLY TO OPEN APRIL 2

Present Plant Closed Last Week in March While Machinery Is Transferred

The new $5,000,000 car assembly plant for the Oakland All-American Six will start production on April 2, it is announced by A. B. Glancy, president and general manager of the Oakland Motor Car Company.

The old assembly building was closed on March 21 to permit the transfer of a portion of the machinery to the new structure. A large proportion of the new plant equipment, however, is entirely new. Electrical-driven machine units with individual control are used throughout. The old building will be used for material storage.

With the completion of the new assembly building for the Oakland All-American Six, the company now has one of the most modern automobile plants in the world. Two model assembly plants, one devoted exclusively to Oakland Six production and the other to Pontiac Six production, now lie parallel to each other. They are served by an "indoor railroad" nine of the ten tracks being under roof. Construction throughout both plants is of brick, steel and concrete and the monitor

PLAN AUTO TOUR THROUGH JUNGLES

Here's Chance for Adventurous Motorists to Get a Thrill

There is a motoring tour now under way which, it is safe to predict, will out-do in thrills and drama any of the experiences of some 40,000,000 Americans who will take to the highways this season.

It is a tour through jungle trails, over desert wastes, across rivers unbridged except by make-shift pontoons, through mud and swamps and infested marshes. Four men are attempting the journey, a trail-blazing route 10,000 miles long, from Cape Town, in the Southern most part of Africa, to Cairo and thence on a swing through Europe to London.

A good share of the trip is over uncharted lands never before traversed by a stock car, amid jungle life, where a tropical sun burns down by day and where the wilderness echoes with the threat of savage life at night.

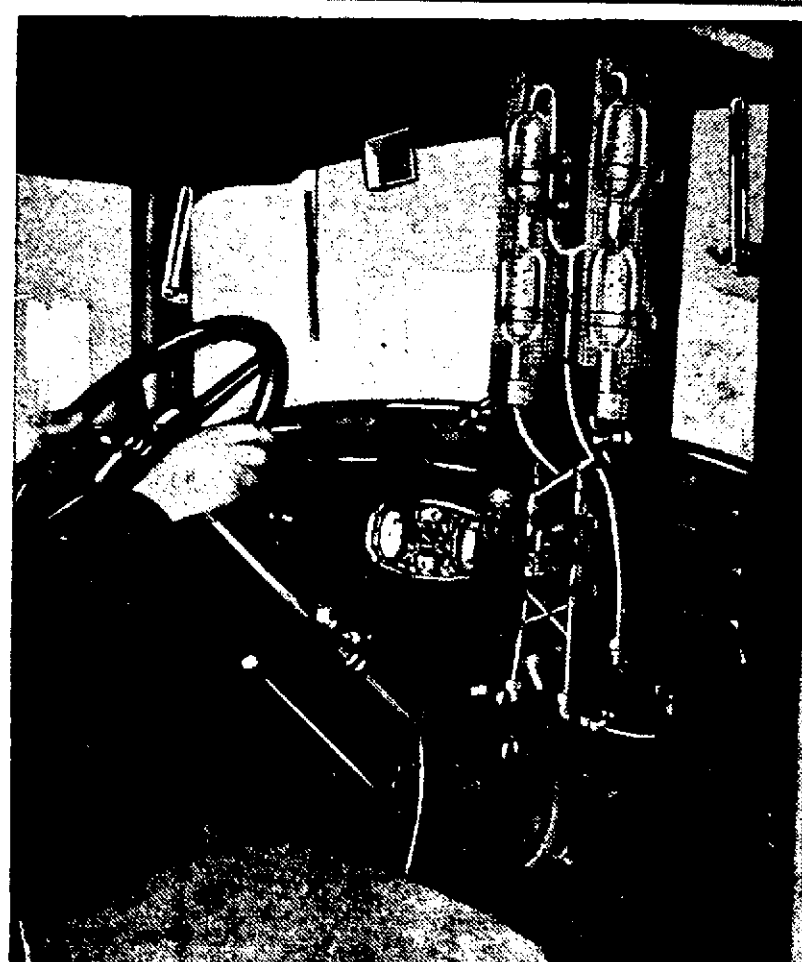

The transportation selected by the adventurers consists of a stock Chevrolet sedan tried by a Chevrolet truck on which is carried equipment necessary to keep a path through wilderness tangles. Included in the equipment is a complete wireless outfit with which the men will maintain contact with the outside world and a medical chest containing anti-venom serum and surgical and first aid supplies. Each member has been inoculated against jungle fever.

The run was officially started by radio from New York City by J. D. Moore, president of General Motors Export, who expects to sail from New York in time to greet the travelers in Europe. The first leg of the run, Cape Town to Cairo, is scheduled for completion in 40 days.

Heading the party is the famous African adventurer, Captain Lacey. Others are a wireless operator, a newspaper man and a motion picture photographer. Selection of a Chevrolet to carry the party was logical, following a demonstration of the rugged qualities of the car conducted recently by Lacey, in which he bested by nine type roofs admit a maximum of daylight. A huge addition to the Oakland-Pontiac shipping building was erected at the same time the new assembly plant was being constructed.

CHECKING TWO INJURIOUS PRACTICES

Governor Zimmerman in his address here recently pointed his finger directly at a practice in state affairs, an injurious practice, one unfortunately that is becoming more and more prevalent, a practice that tends away from the truth and hence away from good government.

He told the story of the general session of the legislature of January, 1927, of its appropriation of $11,000,000 for the university, $4,000,000 for normal schools, $550,000 for a library building, $300,000 for a field house, $500,000 for public parks, and all of which was done by the legislature innocently and gaily without the slightest discussion concerning the means of raising this vast amount of money, whether by land tax, income tax or surtaxes on incomes. Such a practice is like writing checks; it is easy to write them. The governor vetoed these different appropriations for one reason or another. He vetoed the $500,000 appropriation for public parks when he ascertained that the property the legislature wished to buy was assessed at only twenty per cent of that amount, a matter which did not seem to bother the legislature at all. He vetoed other appropriations because he did not have the time to become satisfied that it was proper to so spend the money. He made up his mind that he was going to investigate and it took time for investigation. Yet, after the investigation and when the matter was again submitted to the legislature a great hubbub arose upon its part because of the near approach of another election and in its effort to introduce political questions into a mere matter of the state's business.

The governor's discussion of the matter was singularly without feeling or bitterness despite the savage political attacks upon him. He made no charges. He entered into no personalities. He simply recited facts. They speak plainly enough for anyone to understand. He remarked that it was difficult for him to understand why these political questions would be raised "when the blind and the deaf, the feeble-minded, the insane, inmates of our correctional institutions, and the children at our industrial schools were in need of help." But it will be apparent to the public that despite the urgent need of passing upon these matters without the interjection of political issues we have in the state a certain class of politicians to whom the needs of these unfortunates are as nothing in comparison to their personal, political ambitions.

The governor also found a practice prevailing in relation to the employees of the railroad commission which he immediately stamped with his disapproval and concerning which he obtained a correction. It seems that over a long period of years the engineers, experts and others in the direct employ of the railroad commission and upon whose advice and evidence that commission must in large measure rely for its opinions, were permitted also to do work upon the time and at the pay of some public utility corporations in the state. How such a practice could be permitted in a state so particular about keeping out of its public affairs any possible influence to their detriment, is more than difficult to understand. For a public service corporation to employ an expert at one time and probably pay him well and thereafter expect that person to be uninfluenced in his opinions concerning the rights of that public service corporation is drawing too hard on human nature.

The governor's steps have been constructive. We are glad to see him steadfastly refuse to enter into personal controversy, to use personal abuse or to vilify anyone. The people expect their governor to keep his head above the storm. They expect strength of conscience and character in the gubernatorial chair in spite of the hurdy-gurdy show on in the legislature.

ELECTRIC POWER COSTS

The National Popular Government League has been making a study of the comparative costs and rates of domestic electricity in typical cities in this country and Ontario. In the Canadian province the hydro-electric system is owned and operated by the government.

Taking over 32 cities of the United States, with a population of over 25,000,000, it is found that in 1926 the average cost of electricity to consumers was 7.4 cents per kilowatt hour. Taking 21 cities in Ontario, with a population of 1,179,000, it is found that the cost was only 1.6 cents per kilowatt hour.

It is only fair to add certain items to this charge in order to make the production costs on both sides of the border alike. These additions include .16 cent to represent taxes which the Ontario system, being publicly owned, does not pay; .16 cent to represent a 10 per cent profit to stockholders, which the Ontario system does not pay, since it gives service at cost; and .48 cent for the cost of fuel, since the Ontario system generates by water-power, while 23 of the American cities studied use chiefly coal.

This brings the Ontario rate up to 2.4 cents per kilowatt hour, which is still 5 cents less than the average American rate. Britain, Norway, Sweden, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Russia are now engaged in giant power developments. In all of those countries power is regarded as a public utility, to be regulated or controlled by the people through their governments, and so made to serve rather than to exploit the public.

It is a subject which is becoming of greater interest in this country, right along, although there is much popular prejudice against government-owned business.

WHEN RIGHT IS WRONG

Preachers often rebuke their congregations for doing foolish or wrong things. The other day one reminded his audience that it is possible to give too much attention and energy to right things. He was pleading for a better sense of proportion in daily living. Proportion, when one stops to think of it, is really becoming rather scarce in America.

Earning a living is legitimate and important. Yet the man or woman who lets business take too great a share of time, cheating social, religious and recreational needs, is just as unwise as the one who neglects business entirely.

Women's clubs are doing valuable work in civic life today yet club work that is pursued to the exclusion of everything else throws life out of balance. The mother who used up her energies in scrubbing and cooking and mending has been scorned by modern women because she neglected the vital human relationships of her home while looking after physical needs. The modern woman has wisely learned to keep the scrubbing down to its due proportion, but she has not yet learned to see all her activities in their true values.

Speed, power and success are the time and energy-takers these days. They are all right, but the preachers do well to remind us that they are not everything.

MONEY-IDLENESS

The really serious unemployment in this country is financial. There are too many unemployed dollars. Armies of them have been rioting in Wall street lately.

Our bank vaults hold most of the monetary gold in the world. Money keeps on accumulating, in spite of billions sent abroad for investment. The situation has grown worse because funds have not been pouring into industrial development so rapidly.

The accumulations of work and thrift rise and overflow. Interest rates tend downward. More money is available for speculation. Credit expands. Easy money, more than anything else, has been the real cause of the recent bull movement in Wall Street, with the stock exchange breaking all records for volume in business.

That is one way of putting money to work, but not the best way. It ought to go into constructive investments, getting ready for the enormous prosperity this country is destined to enjoy.

Of the 72 fatal accidents in Manchester, England, streets last year more than 50 per cent were directly due to carelessness on the part of the pedestrians.

THE END OF THE COLIC BOUT

As the bell rang marking the close of the third round, grandma was still at the typewriter, was still waiting for the boy to bring the computing machine so he could begin counting in the established Chicago manner. As for me, I was in a neutral corner sounding off. Do you remember?—I was concerning our boasted system of public education, because it so carefully avoids anything like instruction in the care of infants, a trade or calling which, in the opinion of educational authorities, does not deserve the serious consideration of our funny school system. I hold it would be a boon to the race if our schools would can Shelly, algebra, folk dances and if necessary composition or essay writing to make room for a course of instruction for both boys and girls 10 to 12 years of age, in the care of infants.

Well, nobody cares to answer that one. Too radical, I suppose. All right, let it go. To get back to the colic, grandma is evidently out to stay. The meeting is over. But before you leave, I want to be sure you understand what it is all about.

You see, grandma and I clinched on the colic question. Grandma averred, as grandma always does, that colic can happen. I politely yet positively and scientifically asserted it does not. So we went to the mat—or rather grandma did. I sprang an unexpected left to her wind. I made the astounding, though unshakably solid, assertion that distension of a portion of the alimentary tube gives neither pain nor distress, even though the flatulence or retention or formation of gas or air be extreme enough to convert the belly into a drum. That finished grandma, and the bout.

The most common cause of the crying and other best ideas of a big job. "Colic" is hunger. The antics of the infant somewhat behind the times. This may be readily determined in any case, provided you have not already piled the unfortunate infant with alleged "colic" remedies. Just feed the baby his proper milk mixture and he will quiet down and pound his ear, if hunger is what ailed him. Every baby up to the age of 2 years should be undressed, bathed and given 15 or 20 minutes to play on a blanket naked, then put in his nightgown and sleeping garment, fed and put to bed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

No regular baby should consent to wear a lot of flannel or other clothing over his stomach. No sensible mother will subject her baby to any such irritating excess of clothing. The baby's stomach should be kept just as warm as his feet or his hands, but not warmer.

Free pamphlets on infant care are obtainable by citizens who will address a request to the chief of the children's bureau, labor department, and the surgeon general, public health service, Washington, D. C. These are not exclusively for the times. At least the latest editions I have seen are. But they are the best free baby books I can suggest. Remember, now, no baby ever has colic, and a baby well cared for very rarely has any trouble that can possibly be mistaken for colic.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

It Is a Dirge

Kindly forward the Brady Symphony for overweight and oblige. (R. A. P.)

Answer—Stop, stop. You get me off my tempo. The Brady Symphony is not for overweight. I am sorry, but it is again my economical principles to advise that you get down to weight, unless I am first satisfied that reduction would improve the individual's health. The Brady Symphony is a system of exercises to keep one physically fit. I suppose it was a mistake for me to advise some nice plump person to use it in lieu of the threatened diet or other unwise reduction regimen, but I meant well. I meant that the exercises will make a fatish person feel more slender, yes, and look more so, though there is no reduction in weight. At grave risk of adding to the confusion, I might say that my reduction advice is no sympathy. Just what sort of music it is well leave to the verdict of real honest to goodness obese folk who have received it.

Bimbo Is a Tough Guy

I have a grandson five months old. For the last month he has been fed at times small quantities of battered bread, jelly, juice from soup, mashed potatoes. This has done no apparent harm and the child always cries for more. He weighs 17 pounds and has always been well. Is there any harm in feeding him in this way? (T. C.)

Answer—Well, it is a tough guy, but if the bimbo is a tough guy and comes right back for more, it is all right, that is, everything except your spelling of jelly.

Ingrown Nail

Away back, maybe before de wah, you printed a recipe for some preparation to put in the groove at the edge of a toenail to loosen it, to harden the tissue, and it fixed me out fine, but I have another of the same pesky monstrosities—I think you declared in your customary nonchalant manner that there is no such thing as an ingrowing nail—I'll be grateful if you will repeat that recipe. (P. W. S.)

Answer—Powder the groove with alum. Wash the edge of the nail "groove" with probably rests on the observation that the granulation tissue "proud flesh" heaps up over the edge of the nail. Besides powdering the groove with alum, cleanse and dry the skin and apply spirally strips of adhesive plaster in such a manner as to draw the skin away from the edge of the nail. Narrow, outlying shoes cause this painful condition, but vanity is a harder thing to cure.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Saturday, April 4, 1903

President Roosevelt visited Wisconsin the previous day. He spoke on trusts at a banquet in his honor in Milwaukee. He addressed a crowd that filled the state capital grounds at Madison and he addressed the Milwaukee people at the Wisconsin State Fair.

The papermakers delivered an ultimatum to the proprietors of paper mills the previous day. Among the demands made were a 65 hour week and time and a half pay for Sunday work.

The public schools were to resume work the following Monday after a week's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hayes went to Milwaukee that day where they were to visit friends for several days.

Al Langstedt returned from Hayward where his firm was installing an electric lighting plant.

TEN YEARS AGO

Saturday, March 30, 1918

The German drive was regarded as halted as the enemy soldiers were digging themselves in. Marshall Foch was appointed as inter-allied generalissimo on the west front as the direct result of urging by President Wilson for centralized control.

Walter Deissel, assistant highway commissioner, returned that day from attending a road school at Green Bay.

Mrs. Joseph Schweitzer left for Prairie du Chien that day where she was to visit her daughter, who was a student at St. Mary's academy.

Sergeant Leslie Holzer stationed at Camp Grant, was spending a few days in the city visiting relatives. He expected to leave the Illinois camp soon for Texas.

Fred Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Nelson, 818 Morrison-st., had been appointed to the United States naval academy at Annapolis. The appointment was made by Congressman D. G. Clason.

Electors in England who before 1832 had the right to vote because they had "boiled the pot on their own hearths" for six months previously were known as "potwallopers."

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

ON—

NOMINATING PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

Washington, D. C. — Washing an elephant has long been vaudeville's best idea of a big job. It is a big job, especially because elephants do not take kindly to the process.

And so is nominating a man for the Presidency a big job. Any one who is in doubt about the truth of the statement should inquire of the score of more men who have endeavored to nominate various candidates for presidential honors. He will receive fervent, if not profane, assurances that it is a big job, and one that has far more serious complications than an elephant's aversion to being washed.

Probably there is only one more difficult job, and that is being a candidate for presidential preferment by either of the major parties.

The candidate's position is especially trying because at the outset he is confronted with the problem of determining how his campaign is to be managed. Perhaps he'd like to manage it himself. Perhaps he is reluctant to entrust his fate to any one individual among the many friends who are not only willing to take charge but insist upon being so commissioned.

Events have demonstrated that a candidate can not manage his own campaign. Perhaps the only time in relatively modern politics when a candidate was able to do that was in 1895 when the late William Jennings Bryan carried the nomination of the Democratic party without letting anybody know he was a candidate, seriously speaking, and he had an extraordinarily propitious opening for the exercise of his peculiar talent.

Consult the record: Harrison had his "Pacifist" Cowley; Cleveland, his "Lamont"; McKinley, his Mark Hanna; Roosevelt, his Cortelyou; Alton B. Parker, his Belmont and Taggart; Taft, his brother and Arthur I. Vorys; Roosevelt—in 1912—his Perkins; McConkey, his Hittcock; Cox, his Moore; Harding, his Daugherty; Coolidge, his Stearns and Butler; and John W. Davis—well, Davis had everybody working for him who participated in the Madison Square Garden fiasco, although he may not have had a real manager.

HOW THEY GET THAT WAY
Lament whether or not they ask it, often have in mind a question to be addressed to presidential candidates—"How do you get that way?"

That is, by what process does a man come to be regarded as a candidate, and, then, how does he blossom out overnight into full-fedged organization to advance his candidacy?

Men get to be presidential candidates because of their ambitions and through records in the public service that suggest their availability for the high office. There is no reason why any American citizen should not be a candidate, and able to provide all needed sinews of war, and yet he might be the worst possible choice as a manager. Choosing him might give offense to other friends, each of whom believed he had a right to expect the preferment, or the man himself might have everything to recommend him save the ability really to direct a presidential campaign.

Or if the candidate decides at first to leave the direction of his political interests to an informally or self-constituted committee of his friends, he may learn to his sorrow that thereby he has bred jealousies, clashes in authority, bitterness, and perversities that will wreck all his hopes, or at least make the prize scarcely worth the price.

And if a campaign is selected and duly commissioned, that individual is certain to come in for an amount of grief that is almost disproportionate to the satisfaction he will derive from putting his man over. His is the task of not only determining the line of campaign, but in besting and keeping all the candidates' friends and supporters lined up harmoniously, properly enthused, and aggressively busy. He must be a man of infinite variety. He must be a fighter, a diplomat, a bully, a schemer, a psychologist, and a cheer leader. He must have the wisdom of a serpent, the vision of a clairvoyant, the resourcefulness of a chameleon, and the patience of a Job.

Above all, he must have an inexhaustible capacity for listening, for he will have more schemes, suggestions, and advice thrust at him than he could utilize in a dozen campaigns, even if they were good.

What is declared to be the most costly blunder in the world has been revealed in the Russian town of Sverdlovsk. Nearly $2,500,000 worth of precious stones have been used in road making there. The lot was light gray and was first paired. Huge blocks of jasper were buried in the ground, while beautiful green malachite, topaz and even jade were crushed to use in the paving. The mistake is said to be similar to that at Kimberley, South Africa, when the streets of that city were first paved. The blue clay used there contained diamonds, and when the mistake was discovered it was carefully scraped up and washed. More than $5,000,000 worth of gems, some as big as hazel nuts, were recovered. The timely discovery made the blunder less costly than that in Russia.

Dyspepsia is said to be more prevalent among unmarried men and women between the ages of 30 and 50 than among their married brothers and sisters.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

TENNIS MAKES DEMANDS ON THE MUSCLES AND NERVES

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, Chicago, Ill., and the Health Magazine

In a recent symposium on the health aspects of sport Dr. F. H. Lorentz of Hamburg pointed out that tennis makes special demands on the nervous system.

It is no longer a lady's game but demands a well developed musculature, a quick hand, and a lightning-like ability to grasp a situation. It demands co-ordination of brain and muscle, of eye and hand, and a sense of position above that of almost any other sport.

MUST BEGIN EARLY
His analysis leads Doctor Lorentz to believe that tennis is one of the sports which must be begun with early youth if the player is to achieve championship form. The lists of accomplished players include few, if any, who have begun playing tennis after reaching their twentieth year.

While tennis is no longer in any sense of the word a lady's game, it is one of the few games in which women have achieved great prowess and in which men and women may play at the same time without the competitive features of the game for either sex.

REQUIREMENTS
Most tennis players of ability are of medium weight. The game does not demand height, and it is seldom likely to be suited to a person who is exceedingly tall, or especially heavy. On the other hand, a long reach and a long stride may be of the greatest value to an accomplished player.

The average player seldom needs to train particularly for tennis. The championship players must, of course, follow all of the training rules that apply to athletes in other sports. If the player is short of wind, this can be built up by running as a form of exercise.

MUSCLE CRAMP
Tennis players not infrequently suffer with "charley horses" or muscle cramp. Either of these conditions can be readily avoided by thorough massage of the muscles after each game.

One of the difficulties about tennis is that it is distinctly a summer sport. The tennis player who wishes to keep in trim must have a winter sport of similar nature and if he is unable to travel to a warm climate, he may keep himself in trim by handball, basketball, or similar sports.

One form of injury extremely common among tennis players is tennis elbow, due to overstrain of muscles around the elbow joint. This is to be over come only by rest, use of heat to encourage circulation, and careful massage and manipulation after the tissues have begun to regain normal condition and inflammation has disappeared.

KNEE TROUBLE
Difficulties with the feet and in addition throwing out of place of some of the cartilages of the knee joint occur not infrequently in tennis due to constant turning of the entire body upon the foot. These things demand the most careful attention by competent surgeons who will put the tissues into normal condition through proper braces, bandages and similar devices.

Tennis places a considerable demand upon the heart and the game should not be indulged in unduly by those whose hearts are not in excellent condition.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Now and then a sense of unreality envelops the towering turrets of what some are pleased to call "this modern Babylon."

Now and then a lone personality can, through the overpowering force of simplicity and kinship with romance of far-away places, cast a spell that temporarily gives the Manhattan monoliths a mirage-like status. I have never, for instance, left an afternoon's gathering of old sea dogs at the Explorers' Club without rubbing my eyes and wondering if the mad city were really there, or if I had been lulled to sleep by a dream.

I felt that way the day a young man named Lindbergh came riding in state through the Wall Street belt. Late one afternoon, listening to Commander Richard Byrd spin yarns of many hazards, I looked from the window in the McAlpin Hotel with that same sense of unreality.

The other day, in a snug side office of the Lateral Guild, high above Fifth Avenue, a dozen of us packed around the perishing figure of an "ancient" man named Lindbergh, who was the last of his kind. The sun was setting. The huge windows had looked out on the straight line formed by the river with its toy-sized ships that turned now lavender, now red, now multi-colored as the sunset ran its chromatic scale. Between the office window and the river, the city piled its helter-skelter of roof tops and sky-climbing stone peaks. Long shadows began to form angles upon them and church spires cast strange patterns upon their sides.

Back in the little office an old man was wiping his rheumy eyes and stroking his long white, silken beard. His voice, high pitched and cracking, had the uncanny quality of a voice from the tomb.

It was old "Trader Horn," the venerable old fellow who hunted ivory, pelts and adventure in the African wilderness for so many years and who, because of the whimsicality and simplicity of his amazing tales, became a world figure over night.

The old fellow was talking to a gathering of newspaper people.

"Ah, like the Queen of Sheba she was . . . so fair." . . . And he rambled on, mentioning the strange beauty of jungle goddesses, the were thousands of miles away from the room. The buzzing questions of reporters were like so many flies in a hot room. The voice went on, telling of ivory trades and hairbreadth escapes, of death faced before cannibal tribes.

And five of us, who stood upon a table, looked at each other—a bit queerly, and then out over the city, now blazing red in the sunset. It seemed incredible that New York was a mad maze of swarming humans, of screaming traffic and jumbled buildings.

For there are people who can beat Manhattan at its own game. Even to an old-timer it often seems incredible that man could have built such a mad trap for himself as this city. And yet, in the jungle, the mad city is a mad maze of swarming humans, of screaming traffic and jumbled buildings. For there are people who can beat Manhattan at its own game. This Changing Age

By Matt Schmidt & Son

(From Appleton's Journal, Dec. 22, 1885)

The women high latted the men in those days. "Where are we tonight, dear boy?" asked one. "Really don't know, old chap, I fancy it's an opera. I hear singing, I think" retorted the other.

There is nothing 'high hat' about the price you pay for better men's furnishings at this store. But you DO get top-notch quality in everything from socks to silk shirts. The very essence of this business can be described in one word—RELIABILITY.

WOULD USE CHEMICAL FOR FISH FOOD WHEN RESTOCKING STREAMS

University Chemist Has Made Extensive Study of Animal Organisms

Madison—(AP)—The task of increasing by scientific means the number of fish in Wisconsin lakes is one undertaken by Prof. George Kemmerer of the chemistry department of the University of Wisconsin.

Fish feeding, Prof. Kemmerer demonstrates, forms a complete cycle of chemical, plant and animal life. The chemical elements in the water furnish food for microscopic plants, algae, which furnish food for minute animal organisms, zoo-plankton, which in turn are food of small fishes. The small fishes either grow to become big fishes, or are eaten by the big ones. Through decay of the bodies of large fish, the chemical elements are returned to the water, and the cycle may start all over again.

From experiments worked to prove the feeding cycle, Prof. Kemmerer concludes that the number of fish available for the fisherman is determined by the food supply, and the food supply is largely governed by the chemical contents of the water.

But, as the decreasing supply of fish in Wisconsin lakes indicates, when civilization reaches a lake, the natural fish feeding cycle is upset—man takes the large fish from the water, and in other ways changes the natural formula of the water.

In order to study fish feeding in a lake untouched by civilization, Prof. Kemmerer traveled to Karluk Lake on Kodiak Island, Alaska, where, in company with Dr. Willis H. Rich of the U. S. bureau of fisheries, he made many analyses of the lake's water, and its tributaries, and an effort to find the proper formula for water that will support a large number of fish.

The problem of increasing the supply of fish in Wisconsin lakes is principally to supply lake waters with chemicals in which they are deficient from the standpoint of food possibilities. Research on this problem is being carried on constantly by Prof. Kemmerer, Dr. Edward A. Birge, president emeritus of the University, and by the Wisconsin and U. S. bureau of fisheries.

Fishing and photography have been hobbies of Prof. Kemmerer since boyhood. The former is responsible for his interest in increasing Wisconsin's fish supply, and interest in the latter is at least partially responsible for his selection of chemistry as a profession. During his students days, Prof. Kemmerer made several canoe trips through the lakes and streams of Northern Wisconsin, fishing as he went.

His interest in the scientific aspect of the fish supply problem was aroused when he accompanied Dr. Birge, as chemist, guide and photographer on a biologic survey of the lakes. Making countless analyses of the water of many lakes, Prof. Kemmerer learned the importance that chemical contents of the water have in fish supply.

CHILDREN WRITE OF EXPERIENCES

Six Books in Local Library Tell of Travels by Youngsters

Six books written by children are listed in the children's department of Appleton Public library. They have been written on the basis that what a youngster writes for youngsters may appeal to them more than the work of an adult.

David Goes Voyaging and David Goes to Greenland are written by David Blinney Putnam, a 13-year-old boy. His first book is about his experiences with William Beebe, the naturalist, on his trip to the Galapagos Islands in 1925. The second book tells about his adventures as a junior member of the American Museum of Natural History's expedition to Greenland in 1924. The expedition collected specimens for new animal, fish, and bird groups in the museum.

Next summer David will be accompanied by two Boy Scouts and will gain more of his experiences.

Doric in Mesa Verde is told by 12-year-old Doris Ussbaum, son of the superintendent of the Mesa Verde park and an archaeologist. He writes of treasure hunting finds, Indians, wild animals, folklore, and bird-nesting.

A Boy's Eye View of the Arctic by Kenneth Rawson is the story of the author's flight with MacMillan in 1925. Among the Alps with Bradford Washburn, a 16-year-old boy. He is a regular mountaineer, having climbed in both France and Switzerland.

CHAMBERLIN COMING FOR VESPER SERVICE

Dr. Roy Bullard Chamberlin, one of the foremost student reciters of the United States will speak at an all-college Easter vesper service sponsored by the Lawrence college Y. W. C. A. at Lawrence Memorial chapel, Miss Miriam Russell, chairman of the social service committee, is in charge of arrangement for the program.

Dr. Chamberlin will be here four days, April 9 to 12, during which time he will be speaker at convocation. He will hold interviews with students of the college during the afternoon and evening.

The speaker is a fellow in religion and chapel director of Dartmouth college. He received his B. A. and M. A. degrees from Wesleyan university.

FILE PETITIONS FOR HAVING STREETS OILED

A few petitions from property owners asking that the streets be oiled this spring have been received by the street and bridge committee, according to Alderman Mike Steinhauer, chairman. Other persons who want their streets oiled should file application as soon as possible according to Mr. Steinhauer so that the first car of oil may be ordered early next month.

Zounds And Egad! Here's News That Will Startle You!

This series of extraordinary news photographs, gathered from the five corners of the world, reflect better than words can express the silly trend of the day's events:

1—JIMMY WALKER ON TIME FOR WORK. James E. Walker, former mayor of New York, who recently accepted a position with a subway construction company, has been discharged. Officials said Walker insisted on reporting for work hours ahead of time, and several times was arrested for loitering about the excavation in the graydown of morning. His dinner pail empty, he hopes to get a handout.

2—BIG BILL DINES KING GEORGE. This was snapped by the photographer as Mayor William Hale Thompson's reception to King George of England was just getting under way. As the cavalcade progressed down Michigan boulevard, Chicago, the camera man couldn't resist getting this charming shot of friendliness into print. The pair are shown in the royal coach, which was brought over for the occasion.

3—LINDY IN "LOVES O' LINDY." This is a still from the new film, "Loves o' Lindy," now being taken in the coast Tinseltown studios. Colonel Lindbergh, you know, recently gave up flying as too dangerous, and is in the movies now. "I'm just doing this for all I can get of it," he told the camera man after this charming daguerotype was taken.

4—WALSH SIGNS VAUDEVILLE CONTRACT. Senator Walsh of Montana, bored by the ease with which he has pulled unexpected things from Senate investigations, has answered the call of the footlights. The bunny he's shown taking from the hat he has named "Harry Sinclair." It knows all kinds of tricks.

The senator is shown in his usual jolly vein, a hearty laugh shaking his sides.

5—COOLIDGE CHOOSES TO RUN. President Calvin Coolidge, tired of keeping cool, at last has chosen to run — in C. C. Pyle's humorist's humor. When he told C. C. Pyle (right) that he chose to run, the great sport humorist had a doctor look him over. There they all are you can see for yourself.

6—JOHN D. TO HURL FOR MACKS. Answering the demands of his many friends, John D. Rockefeller has decided to do one more year on the old diamond. He signed a five-year contract to pitch for Connie Mack's Philadelphia Young Men's Club, on which Bookies Cobb and Speaker are expected to star this year. Here he is shown oozing a sinker over third base. Mr. Rockefeller told the correspondents he was doing it because he needed the money.

7—CLARA BOW SETS FAST PACE. Mortified astounded and shocked by a recent visit to the beach where several young women appeared in one-piece bathing costumes, Clara Bow, sizzling mamma of the movies, has sewed herself up in the dignified raiment in which she is shown hiding above. Clara says the younger generation is getting positively a little too rampant to suit Grand-mama Bow. Clara is just the plain, demure girl she always was—the films haven't changed her a bit.

8—On or about April 1, it becomes the business of a vast number of English people to practice innocent impostures on the unsuspecting neighbors, says the learned old philosopher, Lyssander. Sometimes the opportunity is taken by ultra-jocular persons to carry out some extensive April fool hoax upon society. If this be treason, make the most of it.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

PHILO VANCE JOHN F. X. MALKHAM, District Attorney of New York County

MARGARET ODELL (THE "CANARY")

CHARLES CLEAVER, a man-about-town

KENNETH SPOTSWOODE, a manufacturer

LOUIS MANNIX, an importer

DR. AMBROISE LINDQUIST, a fashionable neurologist

TONY SKEEL, a professional burglar

WILLIAM ELMER JESSUP, telephone operator

HARRY SPIVELEY, telephone operator

ERNEST HEATH, Sergeant of the Homicide Bureau

THE STORY THUS FAR

The Jew case in the apartment of the murdered Margaret Odell had been opened with a steel chisel after a futile battering with a poker. This leads Vance to the theory that Skeel did not commit the murder, but was hidden in the closet while the stranger did the work. Vance traces a picture to Mrs. La Fosse, who informs him Mannix was with her the evening of the murder. Cleaver has an alibi, but Vance shatters this. Spotswoode, who had gone out with the girl the evening she was murdered, asks to be allowed to visit her apartment again.

CHAPTER XXX

"I think it's easily understandable, don't you know," remarked Vance, with a sympathy I had rarely seen him manifest. "Your attitude needs no apology. History and fact are filled with the same situation. The protagonists have been always exhibited sentiments similar to yours. Your most famous prototype, of course, was Odysseus on the citron-scented isle of Ogygia with the fascinating Calypso. The soft arms of sirens have gone snaking round men's necks ever since the red-haired Lilith worked her delectable wiles on the impressionable Adam. We're all sons of that may old boy."

Spotswoode smiled. "You at least give me an historic background," he said. Then he turned to Markham. "What will become of Miss Odell's possessions—her furniture and so forth?"

"Sergeant Heath heard from an aunt of hers in Seattle," Markham told him. "She's on her way to New York. I believe to take over what there is of the estate."

"And everything will be kept intact until then?"

"Probably longer, unless something unexpected happens. Anyway, until then."

"There are one or two little trinkets I'd like to keep," Spotswoode confessed, a bit shamefacedly, I thought. After a few more minutes of desultory talk he rose and pleading an engagement, bade us good afternoon.

"I hope I can keep his name clear of the case," said Markham, when he had gone.

"Yes; his situation is not an enviable one," concurred Vance. "It's always sad to be found out. The moralist would see it down to retribution."

"In this instance chance was certainly on the side of righteousness. If he hadn't chosen Monday night for the 'Winter Garden,' he might now be in the bosom of his family, with nothing more troublesome to bother him than a guilty conscience."

"It certainly looks that way," Vance glanced at his watch. "And your mention of the 'Winter Garden' reminds me. Do you mind if we dine early? Frivolity beckons me tonight. I'm going to the 'Scandals'."

We both looked at him as though he had taken leave of his senses. "Don't be so horrified, my Markham. Why should I not indulge an impulse?—And, incidentally, I hope in a negligent conversational tone. "I missed the revue earlier in the season. How is it you yourself were so late in seeing it?"

"I've been so busy," she confided. "I was rehearsing for 'A Pair of Queens'; but the production's been postponed. Louey couldn't get the theater he wanted."

"Do you like revues?" asked Vance. "I should think they'd be more difficult for the principals than the ordinary musical comedy."

"They are," Miss La Fosse adopted a professional air. "And they're unsatisfactory. The individual is lost in them. There's no real scope for one's talent. They're breathless, if you know what I mean."

"I should imagine so," Vance sipped his coffee. "And yet, there were several numbers in the 'Scandals' that you could have done charmingly. They seemed particularly designed for you. I thought of you doing them, and—d'ye know?—the thought rather spoiled my enjoyment of the young lady who appeared in them."

"You flatter me, Mr. Vance. But, really, I have a good voice. I've studied very hard. And I learned dancing with Professor Markoff."

"Indeed!" (I'm sure Vance had never heard the name before, but his explanation seemed to imply that he regarded Professor Markoff as one of the world's most renowned ballet masters.) (Then you certainly should have been starred in the 'Scandals'. The young lady I have in mind sang rather indifferently, and her dancing was most inadequate. Moreover, she was many degrees your inferior in personality and attractiveness. . . .

Confess: didn't you have just a little desire last Monday night to be singing the 'Chiffre Lullaby' song?"

"Oh, I don't know," Miss La Fosse carefully considered the suggestion. "They kept the lights awfully low, and I don't look so well in erise. But the costumes were adorable, weren't they?"

"On you they certainly would have been adorable. . . . What color are you partial to?"

"I love the orchid shades," she told him enthusiastically; "though I don't look bad in turquoise blue. But an artist once told me I should always wear white. He wanted to paint my portrait, but the gentleman I was engaged to then didn't like him."

Vance regarded her approvingly. "I think your artist friend was right. And, y' know, the St. Moritz scene in the 'Scandals' would have suited you perfectly. The little brunette who sang the snow song, all in white, was delightful; but really, now she should have had golden hair. Dusky beauties belong to the southern climes. And she impressed me as lacking the sparkle and vitality of a Swiss girl in midwinter. You could have supplied those qualities admirably."

"Yes; I'd have liked that better than the Chinese number, I think. While fox is my favorite fur, too. But, even so, in a revue you're on in one number and off in another. When it's all over you're forgotten." She sighed unhappily.

Vance set down his cup and looked at her with whimsically reproachful eyes. After a moment he said: "My dear, why did you fly to me about the time Mr. Mannix returned last Monday night? It wasn't a bit nice of you."

"What do you mean?" Miss La Fosse exclaimed in frightened indignation, drawing herself up into an attitude of withering hauteur.

"You see," explained Vance, "the St. Moritz scene of the 'Scandals' doesn't go on until nearly eleven, and it closes the bill. So you couldn't possibly have seen it and also received Mr. Mannix here at half past ten. Come. What time did he arrive here Monday night?"

The girl flushed angrily. "You're pretty slick, aren't you? You shoulda been a cop. . . . Well, what if I didn't get home till after the show? Any crime in that?"

"None whatever," answered Vance mildly. "Only a little breach of good faith in telling me you came home early." He bent forward earnestly. "I'm not here to make you trouble. On the contrary, I'd like to protect you from any distress or bother. You see, if the police go nosing around, they

WHAT CAUSES THE SICK HEADACHES?

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
We know that cancer is our greatest enemy. It kills more people annually than war or automobiles.
Heart disease is on the increase to an alarming extent. Without quoting discouraging statistics it is enough to say that clinics all over the United States are bending every effort to discover the cause, and block it possible this malady that stands stark and threatening behind every citizen who calls America home.
There are other things that occupy the research laboratories—tuberculosis, anemia, various forms of colitis, complications of the alimentary tract and a thousand other things.
And I am sanguine enough to believe that each and all of these menaces to life and health will eventually be overcome by those earnest delvers who are devoting their lives to scientific research.
But I wonder if any scientist is going in especially for that curse known as "sick-headache."
Speaking from first-hand experience there is little doubt in my mind that there is more suffering, fore lost time, more resulting complexes and discouragements, and more inefficient work, as a result of sick-headache, than from any other single ailment that flesh is heir to.
Sometimes men and women are able to force themselves to go on working through it. More often not. The writer has lost on an average of from fifty to a hundred days a year for so many years that she cannot remember. And I know many people who lose more time than that.
Needless to say, most sufferers have tried everything. But there is little to try, as the best clinics in the country confess there is, so far, no cure for it, as the cause is as yet undetermined.
Nervous? Disturbed metabolism? Poor digestion? Sluggish liver? Auto intoxication? Perhaps any or all of them but nothing seems sure.
And in the meantime we go on. We bring families into the world and do what we can to support and "raise" them, keep up homes, and carry on the world's work, never quite well, trying to be cheerful, no one understanding (except fellow sufferers) and nothing or little done to relieve, us because it is "only sick-headache."
KEROSENE CLOTH
A cloth dampened in kerosene is efficacious in cleaning linoleum, tiles, all kinds of porcelain and the stove.
HAIR BRUSHES
Never use soap on hair brushes. Dip the bristles up and down in hot ammonia water. Rinse and dry with bristles down.

MOM and Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Marye Dearest:
It's really too bad the way you've suffered at the hands of man. Isn't it? No fine motor car, no nice, modern apartment with every luxury! No beautiful clothes—not even a permanent wave!
Marye, I do hate to hear a woman ranting about the injustices man has imposed upon her through the ages. Last week, at the sewing circle, we had an "emancipated" woman present and she talked the same kind of nonsense your last letter contained.
It's true that men have always looked to women to preserve the finer things of life, the spiritual and cultural as well as the moral. And in return for putting us up on a pedestal and "shackling" us they have given us comforts and luxuries and beauty.
Besides, though we may have lost sight of this in our displeasure at having our experiments with life limited according to their ideas of proper conduct for us, we have had the best of the bargain in respect to the two standards.
One grows in beauty and goodness. Marye and persists in ugliness and evil. Man may have been thinking of his own interests alone when he "put across" the single standard—granted it was his doing—but if so, he unconsciously thrust more happiness upon woman than she ever could have got by following in his footsteps.
You may say that man is as happy as woman. True, dear, but would either be happy if woman had embraced the single standard, too? I doubt it.
I'm sure you were more hurt because people gossiped about you than you let on. I didn't tell you to upset you, dear, but just to show you that you, are still people in the world who don't approve of the disregard of established customs and conventions. I'm afraid you've failed to realize certain truths that always have and always will exist between men and women. So I wanted you to know that if you won't protect yourself from the consequences of too much liberty you will have to face the censure of those disagree with you. It is for you to decide if it's worthwhile, Marye darling.
Dearest love,
MOTHER.
NEXT: Mary obeys.

Prints And Polka Dots For Summer Sport Togs

BY HENRI BENDEL
New York—Sports clothes take to prints in the latest editions of what well-groomed women will wear on the side-lines of golf and tennis.
Polka dots stand first in popularity. And because of their newness in the realm of sports wear, polka dots take liberty with sizes and may be as big as a dollar or small as a pin-point.
Next to polka dots for sports come the new two-toned silks. These, in colors, in appearance and in effect resemble the finest of imported tweeds, plus that luxurious something that silk has over and above all its other appeal.
PLAIN AND PRINTS COMBINED
In the manner of fashioning these new printed sports things—the feminine style is the light one. But never on out-of-door things can fussiness be tolerated this spring. The sharply defined up and down of last season is not far enough back for furberlows to have any favor at all. It is still better taste to combine plain material with prints than to have either stand alone. And in the manner of combining we have the distinctive touches that this year's clothes cannot live without.
Many sports costumes take top-coats or cardigans over their two-piece chic to form ensembles good for cooler days. These top coats may be real tweed in matching tones and designs. Or they may be the plain silk over the printed suit.
Back fullness is one thing some new skirts are featuring. All skirts are fuller. Many insist on belts. If so, they usually put them near the normal waistline and, if I may predict a summer style, the normal waistline will be the only one that counts by the time July is here.
Two of the smallest sports suits in print make much use of the diagonal lines. And both make a point of the V-neck and emphasize it by the cut of the inserts in the jumper.
Newest in sports wear is a brown and string polka-dotted crepe suit, combined with brown flat crepe. Its skirt is frankly gored, a very new note. This gives a little more freedom and does away with a bungle-some hip-line.
Deep cuffs of brown add a novel note—similar to the long black gloves of another era. Across the body of this suit the brown crepe puts in diagonal edged banding and brown edges the V-neck, running on down like a jabot right on the dress.
TAPLING DIAGONAL LINES
With this goes on eye-shade pullisan hat, a new shiny, rough straw that has the business and assurance of youth in its recall of this needs only a simple band of brown to be vastly chic. Its crown is deeper in front than back, giving a line not dissimilar to the points on the jumper banding.
The other model shows the new tweed silk at its best—in a charming

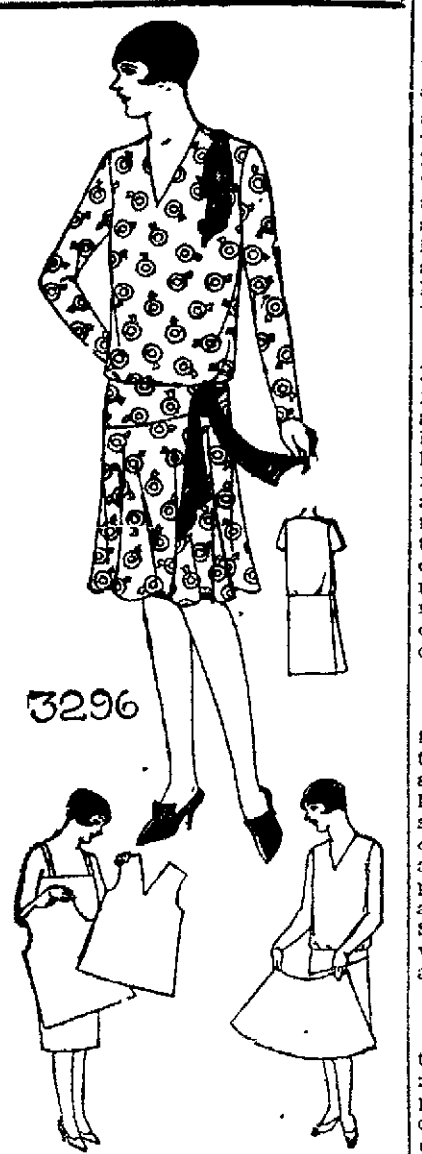

SICKNESS BIG ITEM IN TOO MANY HOMES

BY ALLENE SUMMER
How much was spent for sickness in your family last year? Unless you spent 3 1/2 per cent of your total income you did not even meet the average, according to recently released statistics which show that $2,000,000,000 was spent in this country for sickness last year. That means that if you're a $40-a-week family, you spent about $72.80 for sickness.
And you might be lucky if that was all. Just one serious illness in your family might take your entire year's income and mortgage your home. One of the most serious problems of modern living is more reasonable relationship between the middle class income and the cost of sickness. And yet few hospitals are self-supporting. There must be a solution. We all know too many families who, once soundly on their feet, are now in debt for the rest of their lives because someone in the family was seriously ill.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Grapefruit juice, cereal, cream, waffles with new maple syrup, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Stew of mixed vegetables, bread and butter and jelly, chocolate rice pudding, milk, tea.
DINNER—Baked stuffed whitefish, dandelion greens, stuffed kumquat salad, sponge cake and peach sandwiches with whipped cream, milk, coffee.
Any fish weighing between two and three pounds can be chosen for the dinner fish. Shad, small haddock, bass, bluefish, Spanish mackerel or weakfish might be selected in place of the white fish suggested. In the following recipe the fish was baked on a glass platter and sent directly to the table from the oven.
BAKED STUFFED WHITEFISH
One 2 to 3-pound fish, 1/2 cup rice, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 onion, 1/2 cup minced celery, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 4 slices salt pork.
Have fish cleaned with head, tail and fins removed. Wipe thoroughly with a damp cloth and rub inside and out lightly with salt. Slit the whole length of the fish but do not separate along the back. Wash rice through several waters and cook in boiling salted water for ten minutes. Drain and put into double boiler. Rub tomatoes through a colander to remove seeds, forcing pulp through. Add to rice with onion peeled and minced, celery, salt, pepper and sugar. Simmer over hot water until rice is tender and has absorbed tomato juice. Place prepared fish on a oiled platter and stuff with rice mixture, filling the fish very full and not attempting to sew gash together. Cover with slices of salt pork and bake thirty minutes in a hot oven. Remove pork when ready to serve.

PARENTS SEARCH FOR MISSING SON

A 16-year-old high school boy of the mid-west is missing. Airplanes and hundreds of his schoolmates are searching for him. But they expect to find the boy dead, if at all. The boy left a note to his parents saying "goodbye; this is the end." He had taken his father's car without permission, smashed it up, and was severely disciplined. But the boy's parents are heart sick and aghast. "Surely he knew that he meant more to us than the car," say the stricken parents.
HOW COULD HE KNOW?
But how was the boy to know? Maturity sometimes forgets that youth does not have its own background; that it has no experience for basis of comparison; no emotional background with which to measure relative importance and unimportance. A parent takes his own affections for the child so for granted that he dares "let himself go" with censure. But how is a child who has never been a parent to know the passing lightness of parental wrath as compared with the infinite endurance of parental love?

WOMAN FOUND

Old Trader Horn who with his flowing whiskers, blue eyes that seem to gaze into a fantastic past, and with all the romance of his Rip Van Winkle life, returns to a land he had not seen for scores of years, was "discovered" by a woman. He was only an old pack peddler with aluminum pots and pans when stopping to sell a skillet to Mrs. Ethelred Lewis of South Africa, she saw the genius within him and took down his story as he told it.

GENIUS KNOWS GENIUS

It takes genius to know genius. It takes a woman's sympathetic interest, in another human being to exploit his possibilities to the utmost. One wonder how many men would have recognized old Trader Horn for what he was or, if they had, would have bothered. The fact that the "bother" was profitable to Mrs. Lewis as well is beside the point. Or isn't it?

SILK TAILORED SUITS ARE ONE OF NEW STYLES

Paris—(AP)—Two piece suits made of silk instead of wool are included in many important dressmaking collections for spring wear.
Most of them have short jackets and are made like tailors of wool, without reinforced shoulders or stiffened collars. Heavy silk faille and silk ottoman are often used.
A favorite model has a short jacket with a group of tiny inverted tucks to indicate the waistline in back. Others have fitted jackets of finger-tip length.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

"Oh, there we are," the baker cried. "The cake is set to put in the oven and we had. We've surely done the best we could and I just bet 'twill be real good. You've all worked hard, but when it's done, I'm sure you will be glad."
The Tinies lifted up the pan and with it to the oven ran. The baker opened up the door and put the cake pan in. Now, everything seemed quite all right and so the door was shut up tight. The baker said, "It's baking now." This made the Tinies grin.
"Well, while we wait, I have some work," the baker said. "That I can't shirk. I'll leave you Tinies here and I will soon be back this way." Then, as he journeyed o'er the hill the Tinies just could not keep still. To celebrate the cake they all began to run and play.
Alas, alack, this sure was sad. It made their cake turn out real bad. Their jumping 'round had jarred it and the top fell very flat. The baker came and looked inside and then to cheer them up he cried, "I'll have another cake, so don't you fret and fuss about that."
And, sure enough, another cake had been put in to slowly bake. This was a great big round one and it had three layers, too. The baker said, "Now, close your eyes while I prepare a fine surprise. The cake is done, but 'twill be one thing that I desire to do."
The Tinies closed their eyes real

NEW GOLF TOGS

For stylish Mr. Man on the golf links: sandalwood worsted suit of brown-checked tan, with matching cap, jacket sweater and doekskin, calf-saddled, non-skid shoes.
BY CURTIS WOOD
New York—When a man golfs, the fit and looks of his clothes unconsciously help his game.
Now, before the links are ready for teeing off, is the time for all good golfers to look to their togs.
Plus fours are the thing in knickers this year. But they are not quite so plus as before. So far as materials go, the silk is the limit; that imagination has set for patterns, colors and so on. It looks as if it's to be a colorful season on the links.
The accessories for Mr. Golfer include jaunty striped shirts, colorful ties that take gaudy stripes or notice able figures of golfers or some golf stick, sweaters in every color from pastel shades to black and white and socks that may or may not match the sweater.
Pull-ons of fine weaves in pastel colors are good for light flannel suits or the summer linens. These have no design but are of solid color—blue in a baby shade being not so bad. Ties and socks are fine for green, gold, navy and white. Shoes play no small part in golfing smartness now. Tidy doekskin, with saddles of calf or even fancy alligator, are snappy enough to tread any links with pride. Toward skin is used for some sports shoes. The outstanding contribution to new golf shoes, however, does not show at first glance. It is a new non-skid sole—crisp, slick that positively will not slip at a crucial moment.

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

TOWNSTHINK OF SAFETY
IF YOU WOULD LIVE,
RAILROAD MEN TOLD
Nine Hundred Men and Women Hear Speakers Plead With Them to Be Careful

Kaukauna—About 900 employees of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, their families and friends attended the Ashland division safety rally held at Kaukauna Friday evening. It was the largest audience in the auditorium in recent years. Besides the main floor there were bleachers seating an additional 200.

Frank Wenter, Jr., of Chicago, general claim agent for the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad system and chairman of the central safety committee, was the principal speaker. Mr. Wenter explained the origin of safety work on the Northwestern. "Ralph C. Richards started the safety movement on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad eighteen years ago," he said. "He attempted to prove that railroads were dangerous and could be accomplished without a large number of accidents each year. Education for safety makes men immune and free from accidents. Safety has become of such great importance in this present day and age that the public schools of Chicago are offering courses in safety as part of their everyday curriculum. The first thing a child is taught is to look to left before stepping off a curb. It has been estimated that 50 per cent of street accidents have been eliminated by just this one little precaution."

"In 1924 about 100 people were injured by automobiles or about 150 every minute. The auto problem becomes larger every year. Engineers are to be commended on their cooperation in helping to reduce the number of crossing accidents. In 1924 about 47 per cent of the dangerous accidents were due to automobiles running into side of trains and in 1923 30 per cent of them were caused the same way."

"Wives must help their husbands practice safety. So many believe the pay check is the most important thing. It is not. The most important thing is the ability to carry on and then the pay check is a natural sequence of this ability. If the ability is taken away there can be no pay check. A man that scoffs at safety scoffs at education. I don't know of a movement of such vital importance as the safety movement since the institution of Christianity. To practice safety it is necessary to get a line of thought and then be able to carry it through."

"Four years ago the Ashland division of this railroad system had the largest number of accidents of any division and now it has the least. No one official of the division is responsible for the change, neither are all of them. It was cooperation between the men and officials that brought it about. An operator is the only insurance that will guarantee you to live tomorrow. The man who thinks safety admits he is worth something."

"Every automobile owner should know how many feet it takes him to stop a car while going to a given speed and the first thing to learn is how to stop the car. Automobile owners should practice the golden rule. They should drive their own car like they would like to have others drive theirs. After all only cooperation will do this. 'Live and let live' should be the motto of everyone. Then, too, 'he who hesitates at a railroad crossing is safe'."

The Rev. T. Parker Hilborne of Brokaw Memorial Methodist church told the gathering that many people still had the wrong impression of life, that capitalists and laborers could get along without each other. "One class must recognize the other," the pastor said. "We cannot live entirely by law for there are a few things that common courtesy demands. Courtesy is higher than law. We can get by with certain things according to law but courtesy demands that we don't." The pastor commended the Northwestern safety program.

R. M. Radsch, superintendent of the Thimbury Sulphate mill of this city, said "The Northwestern organized the safety movement in American and still is among the leaders in the practice of safety. Recently a switchman of that road complimented the Thimbury company on the safety and cleanliness of the company's wood yard. He said it was the safest and cleanest on the entire system. This means considerable money to the mill, more than 5,000 cars are handled by the carrier from the Thimbury plant at Kaukauna each year. In the past ten years 52,000 cars were shipped out. The box river valley has been always known as the leading region in the country for safety while the state is foremost in America in the matter of workmen's compensation."

John Leppia, superintendent of the Ashland division and chairman of the safety committee of the division, presided. Two safety films were shown. Music was furnished by the Northwestern band of six pieces and the Northwestern chorus of 30 voices.

Of this number 104 were men and 155 women. Courses were offered in electricity, sewing, basket weaving, general wood work, machine shop, metal work, bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, blue print drawing and pulp and paper making. CONSOLIDATE TWO RURAL MAIL ROUTES

Postmaster Announces That One Mailman Will Carry Two Routes Hereafter

Kaukauna—Rural routes No. 4 and No. 5 will be consolidated on Monday, April 2 according to a statement issued Friday afternoon by Postmaster A. R. Mills. This was ordered by the postmaster general some time ago.

Mr. Mills said "Beginning next Monday, April 2, rural route No. 5 will be consolidated with Rural route No. 4 and will be served by Carrier John J. Kobussen who will cover a distance of 49 miles daily. This consolidation is in line with a program that is being put into effect by the postoffice department wherever conditions warrant it."

In doubling up routes in this manner, it is hoped for rounded that it will be possible to use the automobile daily. This will mean that such parts of the route, where roads are not hard surfaced or kept in repair, will be deprived of service. Other requirements of the department also will be strictly observed, such as proper mail boxes, proper delivery of mail, and approaches to boxes will have to be kept in good condition. At present many patrons fail to realize that it is their duty to keep the roads filled up so that the carrier will have no trouble in reaching the box or so there will be no danger of the car tilting over against the box or post. Boxes that have outlived their usefulness will have to be replaced. An inspection will be made in May."

RURAL SCHOOLS WILL HOLD MEET APRIL 20

Calumet-co Institutions Will Hold Elimination Contests April 6 to 20

Special to Post-Crescent
Forest Junction—Arrangements are being made by rural schools here to take part in the annual township contests which will be held throughout Calumet-co on Friday afternoon, April 20. Each school is entitled to two representatives who compete in spelling, arithmetic, and achievement tests in civics, history, and literature. Writing is not included in the tests this year. County school officials suggest that a declamatory contest be held in connection, the contestants to give selections from their language work. The various school contests will be held between April 6 and 20 to determine the representatives for the township contests.

Two teachers in each township have been appointed to arrange for the contests in their respective areas by securing a meeting place and a disinterested party to conduct the contest. Misses Agnes Hatley and Laura Wildenberg are making the arrangements for the town of Brillion, Misses Esther Schilling and Lillie Loefer for the town of Woodville. Township winners will compete in the county contest at Chilton on the annual county commencement day, when diplomas are awarded.

An accumulation of bills since the December session was approved, and treasury orders were issued aggregating $2,044.86. This amount included $451.73 for the season's snow work, and public utility tax apportionments to the various school districts of $1149.27 which represented 50 per cent of the whole amount received by the town from the state treasurer. The annual report drawn up involved transactions totaling $54,974.19. Approximately $12,000 was expended by the town on roads and streets during the year. The treasurer's and clerk's salaries for next year were voted to remain at $175 and $200 per annum, respectively; the assessor's salary will be fixed at the annual town meeting on Tuesday.

The board drew up a recommendation to the town meeting that $1,000 be raised for incidental purposes, $1,000 for culverts, and a three mill tax for general highway purposes. A proposal to purchase an additional fireproof receptacle for town records will also be submitted to the annual meeting.

A choral cantata "The Suffering Messiah" will be sung at 7:45 Sunday evening at Zion Evangelical church by more than 40 voices constituting the church and unison choirs, the men's chorus and the Open Door Bible class.

Among the vocal selections making up the cantata, a solo "Into the Woods" will be sung by Miss Katherine Seybold, a duet "Betrayed" by Miss Alma Kloeohn and Mrs. E. A. Ruch, a duet "What Will You Do with Jesus?" by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eloy, and a quartet "Calvary" by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Seybold, Miss Arena Kloeohn, and Raymond Schreier. The closing selection "Wounded for Our Transgressions" will be sung by all the choirs in unison.

The Rev. H. A. Franzke leads the devotionals; the prayer service, John Seybold, treasurer, read the annual report covering receipts and disbursements of approximately $5,000 each, of which about $700 was for current local expenses. LACK OF INTEREST DURING CAMPAIGN FEATURES ELECTION

Voters Decide on Delegates, Mayors, Referendums and Other Issues Tuesday

Milwaukee (AP)—Wisconsin's official representatives in nominating the Democratic and Republican standard-bearers in the presidential race next fall will be selected by the electorate at the polls next Tuesday as the climax to a rather drab campaign.

The state is entitled to 26 seats in the Republican national convention at Kansas City, June 12, and a similar number in the Democratic convention at Houston, June 26, and the selection of the representatives to fill these places is the major task of the voters next Tuesday.

A further duty of the voters is to indicate their preference for the presidential nominee and under the state law the name of the voter's personal choice may be written in on the ballot if not listed.

Majority fights, judicial races and special referendums add to the interest in the election in some communities.

Both parties will select four delegates-at-large on which the entire state has a hand in the selection and two delegates from each of the eleven congressional districts.

The Republican voters will decide whether La Follette progressives, pledged to support Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, or Republicans endorsed at an open state conference in Milwaukee who promise to work for the best interests of the party, will represent them at the Kansas City convention. The contest between the age-old rival factions prevails throughout the state, there being opposing candidates in all congressional districts.

The principal contest in the Democratic party is between two factions fighting for the privilege of sitting in the Houston convention and casting their ballot for Governor Al Smith of New York for president. One is the so-called Callahan faction, first in the field and is opposed by the state conference ticket sponsored by Democrats who revolted against what they declared was the "hand-picking" of those on the Callahan slate.

Each ticket has four candidates for delegate-at-large and have additional opposition for the four places from candidates pledged to support Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana who was born and reared in Two Rivers, Wis.

While the delegate fight is clear cut in both party ranks, the primary presents the unusual situation of Senator Norris, Republican and Senator James A. Reed, the Missouri Democrat, being the only ones formally seeking the preferential vote of party voters.

The candidates for delegate-at-large and their affiliations are:
Republican, John J. Blaine, Bosconobel, Norris Progressive; Mrs. Rose Johnson, Frederic, Norris Progressive; Walter J. Kohler, Kohler, republican uninstructed; Andrew L. Kreutzer, Wisconsin, republican uninstructed; Theodore Kronenberg, Milwaukee, Norris progressive; Senator Robert M. La Follette, Madison, Norris Progressive; Mrs. Adalin Wright Macauley, Menominee, republican uninstructed and Andrew Weigle, Milwaukee, Republican uninstructed.

Democratic—Julius Barnes, Madison (Walsh); John M. Callahan, Milwaukee (Smith); George Dwyer, Waukesha (Smith); Nathan Glicksman, Milwaukee, state conference delegate (Smith); J. E. Hamilton, Two Rivers (Walsh); John A. Kuypers, De Pere, state conference delegate (Smith); Arthur W. Lueck, Beaver Dam, state conference delegate (Smith); M. J. Menach, Stevens Point, (Smith); Miles C. Riley, Madison (Walsh); Charles B. Rogers, Port Atkinson (Walsh); Michael S. Sheridan, Milwaukee state conference delegate (Smith) and Ferris White, River Falls, (Smith).

FILM POKES FUN AT NEWS- PAPER HEROES

The ability of sensational newspapers to make a hero of a person for a few short hours and then relegate him into oblivion—is the theme of "The Big Noise," the feature attraction at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

The story from which the picture was made was written by Ben Hecht, one of the best-known reporters and short-story writers in the country, and contains all the elements of drama which have brought Hecht to the fore.

The all-featured cast includes Chester Conklin, Alice White, Sam Hardy, Jack Egan, David Torrance, Bodil Rosing and a score of others. Allan Dwan directed the film for First National Pictures.

SATIRICAL COMEDY COMES TO ELITE

A satirical screen comedy produced on a scale to rival any spectacle of the season is the unusual fare offered film fans here in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," First National's picture of the John Erskine novel which opens a 3 day engagement at the Elite theatre Monday.

Surprisingly beautiful in settings, costuming and photography, made on a huge scale, but humorous and satirical from beginning to end, the picture, declare those who have witnessed it, sets a distinct milestone in film history.

The huge cast is headed by Maria Corda, Lewis Stone and Ricardo Cortez as Helen, Menelaos and Paris.

"SURRENDER"
Mary Philbin, whose rare beauty impresses the world as being almost evanescent, is in reality a most hardy girl.

Her starring role in "Surrender" at Fischer's Appleton Theatre Saturday and Sunday is a part which no fragile beauty could have stood. Miss Philbin showed great physical endurance in the more exacting scenes of this thrilling drama of the early days of the war. She was stoned by crowds, escaped only through her fleetness of foot and in other ways proved that her slight, almost spiritual body, contained a surprising muscular development.

As ever, Miss Philbin is peerless in the depth of her emotional acting. "Surrender" contains a story which continually hammers at her heart. From the time production starts until the filming is complete Miss Philbin lives the role she is portraying. The worries of the fictional character are her own. So there is no great effort on the set when she has to enact dramatic scenes.

The secret of the great actress is that she is Lea Lyon, the little peasant girl, during the two months of production. At night at home, unlike many other motion picture people, she does not attempt to throw aside her characterization. She lives the role, worries or is happy according to the scenes shot during the day.

Ivan Mosjukine, the noted Russian star, plays opposite Miss Philbin.

Edward Soman directed this production.

Why The Tax Rate In Appleton Was Raised From 3 to 3½%

1. In the tax case between the City and County we were ordered to put in a special fund	$100,000.00
2. From 1921 to 1926, inclusive, the Banks paid stock tax under protest, in 1927 we settled this $284,000 claim for	137,000.00
3. The state cut our portion of income tax from 70% to 50% which amounts to	45,000.00
4. By not assessing bank stock in 1927 our total assessment was reduced from $31,716,200 in 1926 to $30,839,175 in 1927 a drop of $877,025 or a loss in tax of	26,300.00
Total loss in revenues in 1927	$308,300.00 or 1% on our valuation of $30,839,175.

The tax rate was only increased ½ of 1%.

The present Mayor has insisted that property holders living on streets to be paved should determine the kind of pavement by a secret ballot.

That no pavement be laid unless the majority of people living on the street signed for it.

The laying of sewers and water mains have been determined by the majority of property holders.

I am seeking re-election, and if elected will continue to keep this harmony with the people.

Survey Shows National Building Is On Increase

Babson Park—Mr. Babson in his weekly review today discusses the building situation. A survey which he had made in various parts of the country, together with reports which he has received from leading chambers of Commerce, show that general building activity is on the increase. Mr. Babson discusses the various factors influencing the building situation today. His conclusions are as follows:
"My survey of the situation proves clearly that the amount of new building is very good. Reports coming to me from leading Chambers of Commerce as well as statistics privately gathered indicate a heavy volume of construction this Spring. However, it is a mistake to conclude that all types of building are prospering alike. Statistics show that there is a surplus of stores, office buildings, and apartments in many parts of the country.
Construction of these types is not going ahead as fast as small homes and of the cities report. Seventy-two per cent of the greatest activity is in the building of homes. This fact is confirmed by statistics from the F. W. Dodge Co. which showed a 27 per cent increase in the building of single family dwellings in February 1928 compared with February 1927. Public buildings, highways, schools, and municipal improvements of various kinds improved 18 per cent. On the other hand, commercial buildings such as offices, stores, warehouses, banks, etc., declined 15 per cent.

"Reports show that building is improving in some places, and is not so good in others. This is typical of the whole business situation today. Although there is general improvement, some sections are more favorably affected than others. New York and New Jersey, for instance, show a 25 per cent new building, showing an increase of 35 per cent over last year.
Figures for Texas indicate an advance

SIMPLER MODELS AND
NEW STYLE CABINETS
FOR RADIOS COMING

Irving Zuelke Company Installs Electric Units in Old Sets

Don't throw away your old radios.
New devices have been manufactured which will save the radio public money. Any radio set which formerly was run by batteries can now be made into electric sets, according to D. Jansen of the Irving Zuelke music company.

A tri-power device which is inserted in the electric socket supplies power to new adapters to A. C. tubes which furnishes the same tone quality, and volume that any other electric radio affords. The Zuelke music company's repair shop receives sets each day which are being rebuilt and electric units installed at a very moderate cost.

Sets such as the Atwater Kent, R. C.
A., Kolster, Crosley, and other popular battery sets are being supplied with the new device. The Zuelke music company will be glad to submit estimates for installing the tri-power unit.
Not many changes will be made to the new radios this coming season.
Simpler models and new style cabinets will constitute the few changes. No new models will be shown until after the "Radio Show" to be held in June at Chicago.

General business conditions at the Zuelke music company have not been much hampered by the recent recessions experienced are being overcome and until the new store is completed the musical public can find all of the newest things in the musical line at the temporary location on S.
Oneida-st.

Plans are being worked out and new and more complete equipment are being considered for putting station W.
A. I. Z. back on the air again with the completion of the new building.

WOULD BAN BOOZE,
USE RICE AS FOOD

Work of Prohibitionists Is Slightly Felt by New Law
Adopted by Japanese

Tokyo, (P)—Although prohibition of alcoholic beverages is not at all imminent in Japan, native prohibition workers are constantly busy in their efforts to dry up the Empire.
Recently the Japanese Federation for People's Prohibition won a slight victory when it induced the Imperial population and food research commission to consider a memorandum urging as a solution of the empire's food problem the abolition of sake, the national drink, and other alcoholic libations.

The prohibitionists contend that about 25,000,000 bushels of rice are used each year in the brewing of sake, which is a light rice wine. They contend that this huge approximates the amount which Japan is compelled to import each year to make up the shortage in the native rice production.

The Federation also declares that Japan spends about 1,500,000,000 yen a year on liquor and that this expenditure contributes largely to the poverty and economic distress of the people. The national revenue from the liquor tax is about 230,000,000 yen, but the loss of this amount, it is contended, would be more than made up by the increased efficiency of the people and the benefits to industry generally. In American currency, 1-500,000,000 yen is about $750,000,000.
One ounce of gold can be beaten out to cover a surface of 100 square feet.

Origin of Oil

It formerly was believed that oil had inorganic origin—that it was formed in the earth by chemical means. But that idea has been given up. Scientists now say we owe petroleum to the oily or fatty parts of long-buried living things. Both animal and vegetable matter from the earth's early ages, when such beasts pictured here lived, gradually became oil.

ROCK OIL

Great cataclysms of carboniferous and tertiary periods in the world's formation, are believed to have made oil.

The ideal oil field has a rock roof. Oil gives off gas and this pressure shoots the oil through openings in the rock.

In the early days of the oil industry, when some of the best fields were tapped by men who did not understand what was going to happen when they made their drill holes, enormous quantities of oil were wasted through the oil spouting like a fountain and running away in a great stream. That is one of the reasons why science now is worried over an oil shortage.

Pilot Tells The 'Why' Of Endurance Flights

When an airplane stays aloft longer than any other airplane, just what is gained besides the glory?

To the average person, the feat of Eddie Stinson and Captain George Haldeman in bringing the sustained flight record back to America is noteworthy in that it adds to the country's aerial record. To aviators and experienced air men, however, it has a different meaning.

The purpose of the flight is perhaps best explained by Pilot Eddie Merritt, pilot of the "Pride of Appleton," who says:

"Strange as it may seem, one of the first things done to an airplane that sets such a record is to practically tear it to pieces. The reason for that is to see the effect of the strain of the long flight and heavy weight of the ship's construction.

"For example, when Stinson's airplane took off on the flight that broke the world's record, it was loaded with 550 gallons of gasoline besides the two pilots, oil and other supplies. That was a enormous weight for such a small ship. As the flight progressed, the engine consumed the fuel, the ship grew lighter and more buoyant, used less fuel and flew on until the pilots were ready to come down.

"A flight of that kind cannot be considered as meaning that a ship can make a practice of making flights of such duration. That would not be possible because this test ship merely floated back and forth on a set course, going as slow as possible and using the least amount of fuel. An investigation of other ships that have made such flights shows that the enormous weight in the center of the ship causes a terrific strain and the ship must give a little in carrying it. As the load is lessened, the wings go back to their proper shape but, of course, are never the same again although they may be strong, sturdy and safe as they were before the flight.

"Then, too, there are always new inventions on the market that want to be tried out. In order to get the hardest usage possible, they are put on ships making this kind of flights as often as possible. To get untried aircraft on a record-making ship is difficult because the pilots do not wish to risk their chances of victory with something untried."

PROSPECTS ARE THAT LIGHT VOTE WILL BE CAST NEXT TUESDAY

Clerk Has 11,000 Ballots
Printed but They Won't All
Be Used

Approximately 11,000 ballots have been printed for Appleton voters for the final election April 3, according to E. L. Williams, city clerk. This number is about 2,000 more than there are registered voters in the city. The extra ballots are expected to accommodate all unregistered persons who might want to vote.

Lack of interest in the election this spring makes it appear that one half the ballots will be used. The greatest number of votes in the city probably will be cast for the two candidates for mayor. Two years ago the two candidates polled only 5,207 votes, less than half the number of ballots available for the present election.

There is one possibility that more votes will be cast this spring than two years ago, because of the presidential primary election which is also being held at the time of the regular city election. Both the Republican and Progressive leaders in the city are encouraging their partisans to get out and nominate presidential delegates with the result that more votes will be cast for city officers.

MINOR LOOP TEAMS WHIP MAJOR NINES

Show Little Respect for Major Uniforms in Training
Games

New York. (P)—Minor baseball players continue to show lack of respect for major league uniforms and the big fellows are finding the trail leading homeward strewn with difficulties.

As the games, which do not mean anything but loss of dignity, went ahead Friday, Washington, Cleveland and St. Louis Braves lost to minor league clubs.

The Philadelphia Athletics, New York Giants and Detroit maintained the prestige of the majors by beating back the opposition from lower classification.

Brooklyn made it three in a row from Boston by winning a well-pitched game 3 to 2 while the Chicago Cubs were trouncing the Pittsburgh Pirates 8 to 2.

MALONE GOES GOOD
The Cubs supported Pat Malone's clever pitching with sharp hitting Freddy Maguire, who is expected to make Chicago fans forget that "Sparky" Adams played second base for the Bruins last year, led the attack.

The Browns were cheered in their 3 to 2 defeat by the Kansas City Blues at the pitching of George Blaholder, Tulsa's contribution to the St. Louis pitching staff.

The Washington defeat by Birmingham made E. West, former Detroit pitcher, a goat when he was cast for the part of a hero. He won 13 games and lost only one for Birmingham last year. The score was 7 to 6.

The New Orleans Pelicans, have not learned to pronounce the name of Shoe Shante but they solved his delivery to win from Cleveland, 16 to 13.

MONTREAL FOES FIGHT FOR PUCK LOOP TITLE

New York. (P)—The Montreal rivals, Canadiens and Maroons will battle Saturday night for supremacy of the Canadian group of the National Hockey League. The second game will be played on Tuesday night, the winner clashing with the survivor of the American group final which ends at Madison Square Garden between the Boston Bruins and New York Rangers Sunday night.

OLYMPIC STARS WIN IN CHICAGO CONTEST

Chicago. (P)—Three of America's hope in the 1928 Olympic games, Lloyd Hahn of the Boston Athletic Association, Ray Conger of the Illinois Athletic club and Helen Fikey of the Illinois Women's Athletic Club, have won more laurels on the cinder path.

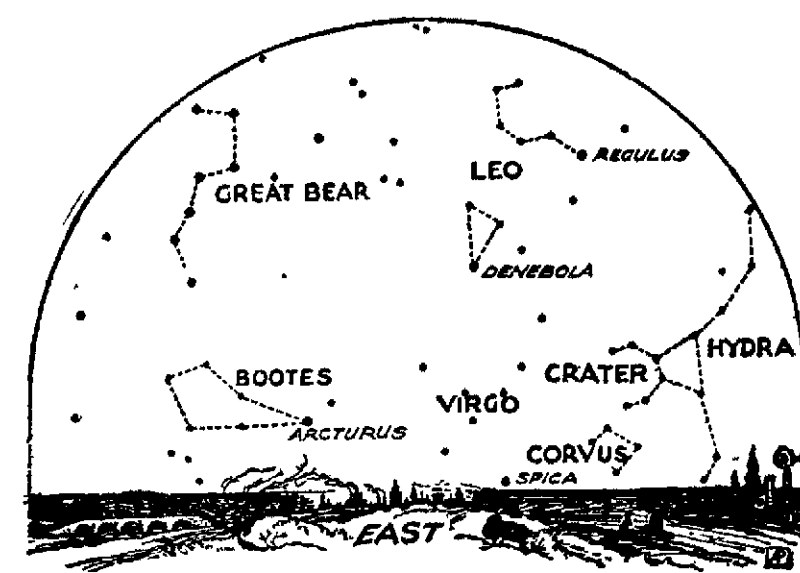

Competing in the annual Chicago "Pankers" indoor track meet Friday night at the Chicago Riding club, each can true to form winning their events. The Boston flier won the special mile event. Miss Fikey won possession of a new world's indoor record in the 60 yard low hurdles by running the event in 8 1-5 seconds, and Conger beat a good to capture the 1,000-yard run.

MICHIGAN FAVORED TO WIN SWIMMING EVENTS

Philadelphia. (P)—With one or more men qualified in each event, the University of Michigan is a favorite to win the majority of national intercollegiate individual swimming titles in the Pennsylvania pool Saturday night.

Michigan Friday night led the field in the preliminaries and semi-finals, in which one new national collegiate record was broken and another tied. Ganet Ault, Michigan, and Bud Shields, Brigham Young university, lowered the old mark of 5 minutes

Striking Star Display Predicted For April

Urbana, Ill. (P)—The Kite, the Sickle and the Cup are among the striking configurations of stars displayed in the eastern sky at night. They are easily located with reference to the Big Dipper.

Follow the curve of the Dipper's handle downward to find Arcturus, the brightest star in this part of the sky. It is somewhat redder than the sun. At an equal distance farther along the curve the blue star Spica is rising above the horizon a little south of the east point.

Arcturus and the stars to the left form a large kite. To some people the figure resembles the outline of South America with Arcturus at Cape Horn. It is Bootes, the Bear Driver, who drives the Great Bear daily around the celestial pole.

The two Hunting Dogs, which assist Bootes in this task, are not so well known as are Orion's dogs in the south. Their place in the sky is marked by a fairly bright star at the right of the end of the Dipper's handle.

NAVY OFFICERS FEAR GERMANY IS WORKING ON NEW INVENTIONS

Have Enormous Appropriation
With Which to Keep Up
Limited Fleet

London.—There is another way than through sheer force of numbers to create a powerful navy, and if there is any foundation for the worries of British and French navy officers, Germany seems to have discovered that method.

Restricted though she is by the treaty of Versailles, Germany is believed to be building a fighting fleet that some day may surprise the world. With a superior quality of armor plating, tremendous concentrated power of their guns and the speed with which they could run to or from an enemy ship, the few vessels being built by Germany may have the offensive power of a force much larger in numbers.

ONLY SIX BATTLESHIPS
On paper, it looks as though Germany is thoroughly shocked by the Versailles treaty. She is allowed but six battleships of the Deutschland type, not to exceed 10,000 tons each; six light cruisers of not more than 6,000 tons; twelve destroyers of 800 tons and twelve torpedo boats.

She is allowed no submarines and can construct no new battleships or cruisers except as replacements for ships more than 20 years old. Notwithstanding these limitations, Germany's navy estimate for the present year is about $50,000,000, and one-fourth of this is to be devoted to new construction. The new cruiser Emden already is in service and sailing in Indian waters. The cruisers Koensberg and Karlsruhe have been launched. Cruiser "D" will soon be launched and work will soon be started on Cruiser "E".

WILL BUILD MORE
As to destroyers, a half flotilla already is in service and another is in construction. The navy also has in contemplation the building of four coast defense ships of 10,000 tons each.

The thing that is worrying the British and French, and also acute critics of the German government at home, is the prodigious cost of these things. The cost is said to be multiplying. The cost of some recent German ships has been reported to the Reichstag as high as $2,000 per ton, whereas the British only spent $1,000 per ton on their greatest superdreadnoughts, the Nelson and the Rodney. The German navy authorities reply:

to their home critics by saying that the Versailles treaty makes German construction more expensive because other countries enjoy the benefits of mass construction.

COMPARE STRENGTH
The following comparisons have been made between the sea strength of several powers.

Germany: personnel, 15,000 officers and men, with a navy as outlined above; budget $5 million dollars.
Italy: personnel, 45,000 men, with more than three times the number of ships allowed Germany, a powerful aviation service and an elaborate coast defense system (which is forbidden Germany), budget 50 million dollars.

France: personnel, 57,000 men; ships equal to those of Italy; elaborate aviation and coast defense services; budget 60 million dollars.

None of the authorities of Europe, however, believe for a minute Germany's naval guns are costing the prodigious figures reported to the Reichstag. They believe that the German naval men have some big surprises up their sleeves. They remember that in the great war the Germans surprised the English by having a special armor protection for their ship decks and a special drop fire for their guns.

It also is believed that with their limited navy, the Germans are concentrating on two things:

Gun power: securing by experiment six-inch guns of a concentrated intensity and power of fire never known before.

Speed: securing by experiment Diesel motor engines of a type hitherto unknown and capable of amazing the world by the rapidity with which they will propel ships through the water.

Many observers believe that all the high costs reported for ships and guns conceal tremendous sums not spent on the actual ships and guns at all. These sums, they suggest, are being spent on a series of intensive experiments which are not even being revealed to the civilian government, much less to the Reichstag and the press.

TRICK SNEWLYWEDS
Budapest.—The newlyweds had just returned from their honeymoon. They received two tickets for "The Wedding Night." The kind honor was anonymous until they returned from the show. Then they found their apartment ransacked and a slip of paper which said, "Now you know who sent you the tickets."
